INDEX 30

Alternative Sources for Burned Counties

Notes from June 26, 1990 WCGS Meeting
Guest Speaker: Ms. Sharon B. Hamner
Submitted by: Ms. Glenda Terry

1) Know your area and the records available.
2) Creativity – look under rocks.
3) Census records – federal or state records.
4) Piece puzzles together – i.e., 1,000 acres owned by a particular person, later records indicate a will leaving 40 slaves to a particular person. You can assume that they are one and the same if you have 2 people with the same name and the other only had 10 acres and was left no slaves.
5) Complete list of personal property taxes (N.C. does not have all).
6) Check borderline counties and states.
7) Vital statistics including delayed birth certificates.
8) Land grants and patents.
9) Surveyors and plat books.
10) Deeds – some may have been hidden or survived fires, etc.
11) Land tax records.
12) Newspapers – also check surrounding counties, deaths, ads, etc.
13) Military records, pensions, muster rolls, vouchers, public service claims, etc.
14) Manuscript records – check with all universities and libraries, archives.
15) Diaries – check especially with universities – they have a large collection of Southern diaries.
16) Business records.
17) Freed-man Bureau Records – records many times include valuable information about the family, as the carpetbaggers often interviewed freed slaves and members of the family. They include treatment of the slaves by the families that owned them.
18) Bible records – also check neighboring counties, states – look where they moved to as well as where they came from.
19) Queries – everywhere!
20) Sexton's records.
21) Court records of adjacent counties and neighboring border states.
22) Colonial court records, grants, surveys, legates.
23) Unusual things… Monticello records, Thomas Jefferson, etc.
24) Universities – for papers (i.e., University of Virginia for papers of George Washington, mentions many people and events).
25) Check published works.
26) British mercantile records – kept detailed records for collection of taxes owed.
27) 1928 aerial photos – on back is descriptor of owner and location. Sometimes can trace neighbors this way.
28) Unusual places to look – public tax accessor's records.
29) Transportation records have surveys – railroad surveys, road (try to use as last resort only).
30) Bankruptcy records (N.C. records are at East Point, Atlanta).
31) Church parish records, especially check if you have a minister – they talk and write a lot!
32) School records, fraternities, sororities, etc.
33) Insurance records.
34) Medical records.
35) Court of appeals – case decisions listed by last name only.

Fax & Census Tips

FAX – Photocopies of a fax should be made as soon as possible. The fax copy will start to fade within as little as a week; may be completely illegible after several weeks.[1]

CENSUS HINTS – The 1820-1830 Wisconsin federal census records are found with those of Michigan. The 1860 Nevada census records are included with those of Utah. The 1860 Wyoming census list are included with those of Nebraska. The 1860 Colorado enumberations are found with those of Kansas.[2]

HINTS – Stuck? Have you tried photocopying at least two pages each side of your ancestor's name when using the census? Use the information to look at your collateral lines. They can be very important resource, as people most frequently married someone who lived nearby.

If you're unsure of the locality your ancestor moved from, try looking at the ten names before and after your ancestor's on the census record. Several families from a community frequently moved together. Look up the names in an index to a previous census from the state your ancestor supposedly came from. Start with the most unusual surname, listing the counties wherein they appear. Continue through the names working up to the most common surname. Compare the counties you have listed. Does one county appear more frequently than others? If so, this could be where your family originated. Start checking the records in that county.[3]

Scott Buie, editor

The first volume of the new annual publication North Carolina Scottish Ancestry is now available. North Carolina Scottish Ancestry, the result of a recent exhaustive survey, represents a comprehensive compendium of genealogical research activity on the Scots of North Carolina. Main emphasis is placed on the Highland Scots; however, some Lowland Scots are represented. Also included are Scots who are probably related to the North Carolina families but immigrated elsewhere such as Canada.

The publication (165 pages, soft cover) contains the following:

- List of surnames and researchers who are interested in or researching the surnames
- 610 queries
- 163 research updates, which include synopses by participants of current research and recent discoveries
- Surname, locality, and subject indexes to queries and updates
- Directory including names and addresses of the 530 participants who contributed surnames, queries, and/or updates

In addition to aiding the family researcher, the book may also be helpful to genealogical, Scottish, and clan societies.

*Fire Breaks Out in the Upper Story of the Roulac Building on Fayetteville Street – Considerable Damage Done by Water – The most dangerous fire that has occurred in the business part of Raleigh for several years broke out yesterday afternoon, about 3:15 o'clock, in the Roulac building, situated between the jewelry store of Mr. BLAKE and Madam BESSON's millinery parlors and for some time that whole block, which is one of the largest and most valuable in the city, seemed to be in imminent danger of destruction. The fire department was quickly on the ground with its usual alacrity… A ladder was quickly put up and a nozzle was turned into one of the front windows and the front room was flooded with water. This room was occupied by Mr. Henry KING and a smaller room to the left of his was occupied by Mr. ROBINSON representing the Endowment Guild Benefit company. Back of these two rooms was an apartment used by Mr. M. H. AUFRECHT for storing his wall paper supplies of which he had a quantity. It was at last found that the fire was in this room but it was impossible to get to it except by cutting through the roof. Men were at onCe sent to the roof and worked gallantly to cut through. Two or three holes were cut and then the water was turned in… The fire however did not diminish. This began to puzzle everybody but at this juncture the men who were working on the roof discovered that there were two roofs on the building. One of these was an old roof. Later the building had been remodeled and run up and a new roof had been put on about 4 feet above the old one, it being allowed to remain. The firemen discovered that all the water which they had been playing through the first roof had stopped at the second and had not gotten down to the fire at all, the water on the lower roof having accumulated to the depth of fully a foot… It was found that the room occupied by Mr. AUFRECHT was entirely gutted… Mr. AUFRECHT states that he was smoking a pipe in his room a little while before the first was discovered and had gone out shortly afterwards. It is thought that the first originated in this way. Mr. Henry KING and Mr. ROBISON saved part of their furniture and property from the front rooms, but much of it was ruined by water, Mr. KING losing a number of books and other articles. Neither had any insurance… The part of the building in which the fire was located is owned by Jas. WEBB, Jr., of Hillsboro, Mrs. D. H. HAMILTON, Miss ROULAC and the CAMERON estate… All honor to Capt. ENGLEHARD, Capt. FERRALL, all the gallant men.

You Know You're A Real Genealogist If …

By Jo Ann F. Surratt

…You beat everyone else to the mail box.

…You spend Saturday and Sunday afternoon copying grave yards.

…You would rather go to the Archives than to the office Christmas party.

…You have permanent writer's cramp from writing so many unanswered letters to distant relatives.

…You hide the bank statement from your spouse so he/she won't find out how much you spent on research materials.

…Your eyesight has deteriorated from reading poor quality microfilm.

…You get those "There's-a-line-at-the-copier-and-a-limit-of-ten-pages-at-a-time-Copy-Machine-Blues."

…Your only excuse for such a large phone bill is "Well I only had a few questions."

…You have some very unchristian thoughts about all those D--- Yankees that burned the courthouses in the South.

…You are on a first name basis with the officials in courthouses all over North Carolina.

…You become a master of fixing copiers with a paper jam.

…You would rather be at the library doing research than at the Charlotte's Hornet's game.

…You learn computer science so you can put all your little dibbs and dabs of paper into computer storage.

…You think NC Colonial and State Records are the epitome of good reading (when you have nothing else to do, browse through volume twenty-two of the NC Colonial and State Records).

…You save your money for a computer with a hard disk drive and still yearn for more storage.

…You believe that defacing public records is a capitol crime and punishable by death.

…You are ready to dig up and shake any ancestor who left a will saying only "to my beloved wife and children."

…You are cited as a source of information in the Heritage Book Series.
