ABOUT OUR JOURNAL

Wake Treasures is the journal of the Wake County Genealogical Society (WCGS) and is free to members. Semiannual issues are identified as Winter/Spring and Summer/Fall. Past issues of Wake Treasures are sold in volume sets. An order form is inserted at the center of the journal and is also available on our web site.

We endeavor to regularly publish primary source documents with historical or genealogical significance for Wake County, North Carolina. We will also publish primary source documents from related counties if there is no Genealogical or Historical Society serving that county. We welcome articles about methodology and research experience as well as articles portraying Wake County residents, places, and events of the past. We seek a balance of time periods and hope to address the needs of both new and experienced genealogists.

Proposals and submissions may be sent by email or postal mail. References used to compile an article must be included. Depending on the nature of a submission, minor editing may be applied, but no substantive changes will be made. Errors in original documents that are transcribed should not be corrected, but notations may be made if they are clearly indicated.

Neither WCGS nor the Journal Committee shall be held responsible for the accuracy of submitted articles. This is the sole responsibility of the contributor. Documented content corrections that are submitted to the Editor will appear in a later issue.

Permission to reproduce or quote from an article published in any issue of Wake Treasures must be obtained in writing from the author or authors. Write to the author in care of WCGS.

ABOUT OUR SOCIETY

Wake County Genealogical Society, Inc. (WCGS) was organized in April 1982 to promote genealogical study and research, to serve as a medium of exchange of genealogical or historical information, to encourage the preservation of genealogical or historical records, to provide cultural, educational, and social opportunities involving genealogy. In 1983 WCGS was incorporated as a non-profit organization under the laws of the State of North Carolina.

Membership is open to anyone with an interest in the purposes of WCGS as stated above. The membership year is from January 1 through December 31. Annual dues are $20 for individuals and institutions and $25 for families (two people, related by blood or marriage, residing at the same address). A membership form is inserted at the center of the journal and is also available on our web site.

Members receive the society journal, Wake Treasures, in which they may place an unlimited number of free queries, and the quarterly newsletter, WCGS Updates. One copy is sent for each Family Membership. Persons joining prior to October 1 will receive all issues published for the current membership year.

WCGS meets on the fourth Tuesday of each month except June, July, August, and December. Meetings begin at 7 pm, and visitors are welcomed. See our web site (http://www.rootsweb.com/~ncwcgs/) for current meeting topics and location.

HOW TO CONTACT US

Postal Mail: All correspondence should be sent to WCGS, PO Box 17713, Raleigh, NC 27619-7713.

Online: Send email to wcgs@pobox.com. You can subscribe to our society mail list from our web site. Find us on the web at http://www.rootsweb.com/~ncwcgs/

Change of Address: Please notify WCGS of a change of address as soon as it is known so that your journals and other WCGS communications will reach you in a timely manner. There is a $3 charge for re-mailing returned journals.

OLIVIA RANEY LOCAL HISTORY LIBRARY 10TH ANNIVERSARY

Submitted by Karen-Marie Allen

August 19, 2006 will mark the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Olivia Raney Local History Library. It is the only standalone local history public library in the state. The library is a repository of materials relevant to the history of Wake County and North Carolina as well as books, microfilm and databases that will lead patrons to information about family members and historical documents beyond NC state borders. The print collection is limited to areas east of the Mississippi and south of New England but the databases include Ancestry Library Edition, the New England Historical Society as well as Genline, Swedish Church Records Online. There is also a wide range of information available on CD.

Patrons are often surprised by the breadth and depth of our collection of materials about other states. Access to these titles is via the library catalog, as many of them are shelved in the area known as the "closed stacks" and must be retrieved by a staff member. Search terms might include your family's name or geographic location. This type of search provides access to the general vertical files, business files, biography files, family files and published family histories that can be found in the family history collection. City directories on both microfilm and print editions are available in the reading room.

You are invited to help us celebrate the past and in particular the ten-year history of this unique county resource. Plan to come for the day. Bring a picnic lunch to enjoy under the ramadas by the lake, and join us for tea and cake and a dazzling array of speakers on topics ranging from the history of bootlegging in North Carolina to researching land records and scrapbooking your family history. Please check our website at www.wakegov.com for specific times for individual speakers.

If you do not live within driving distance of the library, please feel free to send an email to us at olivia.raney@co.wake.nc.us. We will cheerfully look up a marriage bond, a death certificate, or an obituary in the N&O. We hope your experiences at this library will be both positive and productive.

ABSTRACTING DEEDS

By The Genealogist's Friend

Reprinted by permission
The Trading Path, Vol. 14, No. 2, Journal of the Durham-Orange Genealogical Society

If you have ever compared a book of abstracted deeds with the original documents, you may have been shocked to discover what was missing in the abstract. This doesn't mean that abstracts are genealogically bad. It merely proves that the function of an abstract is to lead you to the original deed, not replace it.

Once you get to the courthouse or microfilm and find the original deed, do you need to copy the entire document? The answer is: No. You can make an "expanded abstract" which will maintain the integrity of the deed but save you the time which the original clerk once spent writing the formality text. What you want are the details.

Which details? What do you write down and what do you discard? To answer those questions, let's take a look at the structure of most deeds.

The Indenture: simply represents a written agreement between two or more parties. At one time a deed was written on the top half of a parchment and again on the lower half then hand-torn apart. Tearing is not neat, and the ragged edge looked like teeth marks, hence Indenture.

Transcribe:

1. Names and residences of both parties; the Grantor's name is the first name given; the Grantee's name follows.

Payment: Next you will find the price which the Grantee has agreed to pay. Record:

2. Amount and type of money

Acreage: After some of that formality text (including gibberish like "bargained, sold, etc") you will usually find the size of the property your ancestor was selling or buying, and it is often followed by a watercourse location in deeds in the original American colonies:

3. Number of acres and name of watercourse or Lot Number and name of street.

Land Calls: Two words or abbreviations signal the beginning of the land description: Viz or Beg. What follows are the metes and bounds in the colonies or the Range numbers in states West of the original thirteen.

4. Enumerate each call or Range with all given details: landmark, compass degrees and direction of line, and number of poles or chains or total acreage.

If you don't find the "land calls," you can blame a lackadaisical clerk who chose not to reiterate what was already in an earlier deed. If you need the land calls, find the previous deed, the deed recorded when the Grantor was the Grantee.

You are not done yet. Look for "lines" along your ancestor's new or old property.

5. Lines

Lines will list a creek or stream or the name of a neighbor who has adjacent land. These are the names you never see in a published abstract. Write down every one of the names; they may eventually lead you to siblings, uncles, or future collateral families, the ones which had beautiful daughters.

As you finish transcribing the calls in a metes and bounds deed, you will know you are coming to a close when you see the word Beginning pop up again. Calls usually end with the phrase, "to the Beginning."

After the calls, you will find wording which your ancestor considered important because it formalized the document. Today we would call it legalese. We don't need the legalese in a complete Abstract. Once you are confident that all deeds were written with this verbiage following the calls, you will feel confident to skip to the end of the deed where you will find the

6. Signature or Mark

Signature: The signature you find in the county deed book was usually written by the county clerk. (I have seen exceptions, especially when my German ancestors could not be understood by the clerk, in which case he probably said, "Here, you sign your name." And they did.)

Mark: When an 18th century landowner used a mark in place of his name, it did not prove that he was illiterate. If he were already a large landowner, he could have been indicating that he normally relied on a personal secretary-clerk to sign his legal documents . . . or he could have been too busy to bother signing. . . or the pen may not have suited him. . . or reasons we can not dream of three hundred years later. The mark the grantor used is quite important. If it is more than a simple "X," it may be a significant identifier which can be used to sort your ancestor from others with the same name.

Following the grantor's signature/mark, you may find

7. Witnesses

Again, no name on the deed is unimportant; and some abstracts fail because they omit some of the names. The grantor usually knew the witnesses. They may be family members, sons- or daughters-in-law, or friends. Your brick walls might tumble with the identification of a witness or two. Write down the names or note their absence: then you won't have to go back to the original deed to check a second time.

There are some additional pieces of information which you will find useful:

8. Recording Date

If a date of record (when it was officially entered in court) is different from the date when the deed was first created (found at the beginning of the deed) you may want to know why. Sometimes the Recording Date follows the deed in the deed book; sometimes the Recording Date will be found in court minutes or records. Any discrepancy will give you fodder for more research trails. And the same may be said of:

9. Dower Rights

Many names of wives (usually given names, not maiden names) have been discovered, thanks to Dower Rights. The Grantor's wife usually had rights to one-third the property. She was interviewed or visited by men, appointed by the court, who took her aside and asked her if she freely gave permission for her part of the property to be sold. One can only wish that at least half of the women had said, "No," to that question; and one can only wonder how much more we might have learned about the woman had she been so bold.

Finally, record the vital link to your abstract:

10. County, Deed Book, Page

Without it, your deed or abstract is nearly worthless. You and all who follow you must know how to get back to the original.

WAKE COUNTY DIVORCE RECORDS 1831-1910

Abstracted by Sarah Sheffield

C.R. 099.604.43

Note: Pl is Plaintiff and is stated first v (verses) Def stands for Defendant and is stated second.

REID, Mary v. Green REID
The marriage was dissolved the Spring Term of Superior Court, 1855 [the final judgment was not in the file]. The Pl was a resident of Wake County. The parties married about 1837 and lived together as man and wife ten years until it is alleged the Def abandoned the Pl and children and left them without support. The Pl reports the Def went to Raleigh and committed adultery with Julia BELL. The Def left the said BELL following indictment in Wake County for fornication and went to South Carolina and committed adultery with another woman unknown. The Def is alleged to have committed adultery with Jackey ROBERTSON and to have had a child with her about 1842.

RHODES, W.C. v. Lydia RHODES
The marriage was dissolved the Fall Term of Superior Court, 1868. The Pl was a resident of Wake County three years before this action. The parties married in 1861 and lived together as man and wife until March 1862 and the Pl entered the army. The Pl claimed he was an affectionate husband on furlough through 1864. When he returned unexpectedly he found the Def in bed with Littleton DURHAM, a deserter of the army. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery also with James HONEYCUTT at the home of her mother. Both parties to pay respective costs. [The decree identifies the Pl as William C. RHODES]

RIGGSBEE, A.J. v. Jane RIGGSBEE
The marriage was dissolved the August Term of Superior Court, 1886. The parties married 14 January 1880 in Durham, Durham County, North Carolina. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery 15 September 1884 with an unknown colored man and delivered a colored child in June 1885 who lived only three weeks. [The record shows both parties are white, thus the Pl claims no paternity of the child.]

ROBERTS, Francis v. J.<sic> L. ROBERTS
The marriage was dissolved the February Term of Superior Court, 1899. The parties married 2 April 1892 and separated the day following the wedding and lived apart ever since; the complaint alleges the Def went to Massachusetts and committed adultery with unknown women. The Def was located in Boston, Massachusetts by summons dated May 1897. In an answer to the divorce petition, the Def responded that he went to Massachusetts with the knowledge and permission of the Pl to pursue work and that he counters it was the Pl who committed adultery and delivered a bastard child, signed Isaac L. ROBERTS. Pl resumes maiden name [name not stated].

ROBERTSON, Willie v. Eliza ROBERTSON
The marriage was dissolved by Superior Court, 1908. The parties married 30 November 1899 in Wake County. The Pl was a resident of Wake County all his life. The Pl alleges the Def separated from the Pl January 1907 and committed adultery with unknown men. Summons dated April 1908 called Ed BARHUM and Marcus (Goose) DUNN.

ROBINSON, Laura D. v. B. J. ROBINSON
The marriage was dissolved [?] in February Term of Superior Court 1900. [The final decree is not contained in the file; it is unclear if there was a judgment or an appeal to Supreme Court.] The parties married about 1885 in Wake County and resided since then in Raleigh. The Pl left the home due to harsh and cruel treatment of the Def and has since resided with her mother. The Pl alleges the Def has kept conduct with lewd women at his dwelling and place of business. The Pl caught the Def at the house in bed 15 August 1898 with Eliza WARD. The Pl alleges said Eliza beat the Pl while the Def held her, and that the Def also beat her, causing disabilities. The Pl further alleges the Def does not provide for her and takes rent from property which she owns and uses it for his benefit, withholding all from her. The petition reports the said Eliza and Def were convicted of assault for the August incident in Wake Superior Court in September Term1898. The Pl alleges further adultery by the Def with Nellie MOORE, a neighbor. A request for an appeal to the Supreme was indicated [papers not included in the file].

ROBINSON, Ned v. Sabrina ROBINSON
The marriage was dissolved the April Term of Superior Court, 1904. The parties married 13 January 1894 in Wake County. The Pl was a resident of the state five years before this action. The Pl alleges the Def abandoned the Pl 11 January 1897 and lived separately since that time.

ROGERS, Bessie v. Delmo ROGERS
The marriage was dissolved the October Term of Superior Court, 1910. The Pl was a resident of the state two years before this action. The parties married 28 August 1907 and lived together until about June 1908 when the Pl alleges the Def abandoned her and went to New York and lived in adultery with Louise ARGO. Delmo was not found in Wake County and the Pl believed the Def had been in New York or Massachusetts about two years.

ROGERS, Ileg v. Helen ROGERS
[No date and no decree]. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with (no first name) BETTS.

C.R. 099.604.44
Note: Pl is Plaintiff and is stated first v (verses) Def stands for Defendant and is stated second.

ROGERS, John v. Lucy ROGERS
The marriage was dissolved the February Term of Superior Court, 1897. The Pl was a resident of the state two years before this action. The Pl married Lucy MERRIT 22 June 1888 and lived together as man and wife until about 1890 when the Pl alleges the Def abandoned him and has not had intercourse with her since. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with Thomas ROGERS [relationship, if any, to Pl, not stated] or others unknown. The Def has had two children more than nine months since the separation after leaving him. The Pl believes the children to be fathered by said Thomas ROGERS. A summons dated November 1896 called James RICE and Tucker [?] EDWARDS.

ROGERS, Sam v. Salina ROGERS
The marriage was dissolved the February Term of Superior Court, 1910. The Pl was a resident of North Carolina all his life. The parties married the second Sunday June 1889 and lived together as man and wife until four years ago [dated from complaint document of January Term 1910] when the Pl alleges the Def abandoned him and committed adultery with various persons unknown. A summons dated February 1910 called Tiny JEFFRIES, Doll SAUNDERS, wife of Dave SAUNDERS.

ROGERS, Willie v. Loula ROGERS
The marriage was dissolved the April Term of Superior Court, 1911. The Pl was a resident of North Carolina two years before bringing this action. The parties married 27 December 1906 in Wake County, North Carolina, and separated 3 August 1907. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with various persons unknown in January and February 1910 and gave birth on 24 November 1910 at the residence of Joseph BRIDGERS in Raleigh. A summons dated April 1911 called Mrs. Joe BRIDGERS, colored (in Idlewild), Dr. P. H. WILLIAMS.

ROLLINS, Samuel v. Julia ROLLINS
The marriage was dissolved the June Term of Superior Court, 1878. Both parties were residents of North Carolina three years before bringing this action. The parties married 1872 or 1873 in Wake County and lived together as man and wife for three or four years when Pl became aware of and alleges adultery between Def and one Terry MIMS and that Def was pregnant by him. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with Sandy BASHAM. The Pl left the Def when he became aware of the alleged adultery and has not lived with her since. A summons dated June 1878 called James RAGLAND, Monroe JONES, and Silas SPENCER. A separate summons dated June 1878 called Emeline LANIER, Ephraim NASH, Sion JUDD, and Toney MIMS.

ROSS, S. H. v. Laura ROSS
The marriage was dissolved the October Term of Superior Court, 1900. [File dated 1900; Judgment decree not in the file.] The Pl was a resident of North Carolina two years before bringing this action. The parties married 24 October 1875. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery sometime in August 1898 with one William JONES and delivered a child with said JONES.

SANDERSON, G. D. v. Minerva SANDERFORD
The marriage was dissolved the August Term of Superior Court, 1886. The parties married 1872 and lived together as man and wife about twelve or thirteen years when the Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with William RILEY and Albert SMITH.

Affidavit by A. B. SMITH denies allegation of adultery. Affidavit by Gaston JONES says Pl is known to be self-willed, violent and dangerous and Def is a woman of good character and that neighbors do not believe the allegations against the Def. Affidavit by Dr. W. I.[?] J.[?] BASHER states that Pl is violent and had threatened the Def with a pistol while intoxicated and that he believes the Def to be a woman of good character.

SANFORD, Ella v. Nat. SANFORD
[Nat. never spelled out in file]
The marriage was dissolved the February Term of Superior Court, 1908. The Pl. has been a resident of the state for two years before bringing the action. The parties married 1896 in Franklin County, North Carolina, and lived as man and wife until about 1900 and had five children, George, Joseph, Myrtle, Cleveland, and Richmond. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with Frazier LEACH and lived near the town of Morrisville without being divorced. The Pl believes the Def is now and has been for several years out of the state as of January 1908.

SASSER, J. D. v. Ella N. SASSER
[Her name appears as Ellen, Helen and Ella on different documents in the file.]
The marriage was dissolved the February Term of Superior Court, 1910. The Pl has been a resident of the state for two years before bringing the action. The parties married 23 December 1885 in Monroe County, Mississippi, and separated 12 September 1907. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery with Dr. John M. SPARKS and Haze BURNHAM in Texas in 1889 and 1895 and with T. W. PACE in Cheraw, South Carolina in 1907.

SASSER, Nana v. W. H. SASSER
The marriage was dissolved the January Term of Superior Court, 1905. Both parties were life long residents of the North Carolina and were temporarily in New York when the parties married in the town of Perry, New York, on 19 December 1900. The Pl stated the Def abandoned her two weeks following the marriage and failed to support her and the child, a daughter named Myra, born of the union. The Pl receives custody.

SATTERWHITE, Eliza v. Robert SATTERWHITE
The marriage was dissolved the October Term of Superior Court, 1902. The Pl has been a resident of the state for two years before bringing the action. The parties were married August 1893 in Wake County and the Pl alleges the Def abandoned her sometime in 1897. The Def is not to be found in the county as of September 1902 and the Pl thinks he has not been in the state for several years. The Pl resumes her maiden name of TELFAIR.

SAUNDERS, Sadie v. Thomas B. SAUNDERS
The marriage was dissolved the April Term of Superior Court, 1906. The Pl has been a resident of the state for two years before bringing the action. The parties were married 31 January 1905 in Wake County and separated 7 March 1905. The Pl alleges the Def committed adultery April through September 1905 in Durham with Florence MORRIS and others. A summons of the Def was sent to Durham Hosiery Mills, Durham County.

BONDS IN THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE ARCHIVES - APPRENTICE

By Debbie Blake, NC State Archives

Within the extensive county records holdings of the North Carolina State Archives is a series of records entitled Bonds. There are several different types of bonds that might be found in this series. Simply put, a bond is a binding agreement. The legal mechanics of a bond are consistent regardless of the type of bond. Over the next few issues, we will discuss five different types of bonds and their importance to researchers: apprentice; bastardy; marriage (touched on briefly in the Summer/Fall 2005 journal); officials; and tavern and ordinary.

Found on most bonds are the names of the county, the obliger and the obligee, as well as the sureties, the penal sum, the dates and the conditions, signatures, and names of witnesses. We will look at each of these entries in more depth with each type of bond.

The bonds found in the North Carolina State Archives are often loose papers that are handwritten or printed with blanks filled in by hand and most often arranged by date. In some counties, there are volumes of bonds as well. Both types will be listed on the card behind the heading for bonds in the county records drawers in the Search Room card catalog. Occasionally, bond information can be found in county court minutes as well.

Part One: Apprentice Bonds

[Editor's Note: Part 1 of Apprentice Bond transcriptions (Adams – Goings) are in Wake Treasures Volume 5 Number 4.]

Historically, the counties have not wanted to have indigent children become their burden. Apprenticeship was one of the means used to make sure that children did not become the county's responsibility. A child might be apprenticed for a number of reasons. Most often we think of orphan children as being apprenticed but that was not the only reason. A child might have been deserted by either or both parents or be from a family that needed economic help. Children (over 14) could apprentice themselves. Parents could bind their children, as could county officials. Children from any economic group or race could be apprentices.

The child was obliged to work for another person who was equally obliged to provide the child with training in a vocation, as well as food, clothing, etc. The bond lists the responsibilities of the person getting the apprentice, as well as those of the apprentice. Gender was not an issue in either party's case. In the colonial period, adults often bound themselves, frequently to obtain New World passage.

While apprentice bonds are actually indentures, the information on them includes that of most bonds. Included on an apprentice bond are the names of the obliger and obligee. This would be the court and the master/mistress unless a parent was apprenticing his/her own child. In that case, it would be the parent and the master/mistress. The date and place will be on the bond, as will the name of the apprentice and, most of the time, his or her parent. The age of the apprentice is given, and most serendipitously, sometimes even the exact birthdate.

The obligations of both the apprentice and the master/mistress are included in the bond. The master agrees to teach the apprentice a skill or trade, to give the apprentice a rudimentary education in the three Rs, provide food, clothing, a place to stay and medical care. They sometimes paid the apprentice a small wage as well as a sum of money or other gift at the end of the term. They also had to treat the apprentice fairly and humanely or the apprentice could appeal to the court for a new master or his/her freedom. The master/mistress could also petition to have the bond broken if the apprentice was not working out.

The apprentice was obliged to work for his/her master or mistress for the term named in the bond, usually until 21 years old for boys and 18 years old for girls. In some cases, a specific number of years might be given. They were obligated not to marry while an apprentice, unless they had permission from the master/mistress.

Signatures on apprentice bonds were usually those of the court official and the master/mistress. There could be witness signatures as well. Only rarely is there a parent or apprentice signature.

The genealogical importance of apprentice bonds is readily apparent given the above information. They might hint to a researcher about the death of an ancestor's parent or the dissolution of a family. Further research could indicate the actual reasons for the apprenticeship. Apprentice bonds are valuable historically as well, since researchers can learn about occupations in a given area. Such bonds give historians a view of a community and its mores. It gives insight into who in a community was willing to teach young people and who might not be able to provide for their children. If court officials are pointing out children who might need to be apprenticed, and some of them did, it tells historians something about that county.

Bonds as a records series are underused and yet they can contain some important and enlightening information. Researchers should certainly check the records in their counties of interest to see if apprentice bonds are available.

BLOUNT STREET AND OLD RALEIGH

Submitted by Cathy Elias

If you walk down Blount Street today, you are greeted with the Governor's Mansion, commercial businesses and old renovated homes, some of which have been converted to state government offices. This is a far cry from its early days when it was one of the prominent areas of old Raleigh society.

Although Blount Street was somewhat synonymous with aristocracy, the entire street actually reflected the melting pot of the community. The center area contained the affluent while the outer edges filtered more to the working classes.

The following list of the residents of Blount Street and their occupations will take you back to the years 1907 and 1908 as you walk Blount Street from one end to the other, seeing the neighborhood and meeting its inhabitants.

From this listing, you can get an idea of how beneficial using old city directories can be. Please come to the Olivia Raney Local History Library and make use of all of our directories.

THE PREACHING PATH

Reprinted with permission of author By Kent Wrench

THE CIRUIT RIDER

The three county circuit traveled by Elder Taylor was rigorous work for the Lord. He swam creeks or swamps and was often wet from head to feet.

The phrase "Preaching Path" is found in a Sampson County land grant dated 1787 that was issued to Jeremiah Tew. This path was on the Sandhill Branch and its course led to the back door of the old Taylor's Swamp Meeting House. This leads one to ponder. How long had a Baptist circuit-riding preacher traveled this path before 1787?

A circuit reached from the Swift Creek Meeting House, near modern day Garner, Wake County, North Carolina, south to the Taylor's Swamp Meeting House in Dismal Township, in Sampson County. The third church in this circuit was Neill's Creek, in what was then Cumberland County but is now Harnett County, near present day Angier.

Evidence of the antiquity of this circuit is found in the History of North Carolina Baptists, as Paschal states, "the church in Sampson, Wake and Cumberland were under the care of Elder William Taylor in the year 1789."

This forty mile circuit covered by Elder William Taylor on horse back was rigorous work for the Lord. Elder Taylor could easily have said a resounding "amen" to the following words penned by an anonymous Baptist circuit riding preacher in 1803. "Ever day I travel I have to swim creeks or swamps, and I am wet from head to feet, and some days from morning to night I am dripping with water.....I have rheumatism in all my joints.....what I have suffered in body and mind my pen is not able to communicate to you."

Burkitt & Reeds Church History speaks of Elder William Taylor coming to North Carolina from Virginia in 1786. In addition to preaching he was a successful farmer. He served the Neill's Creek church until 1798 and then he moved away. It is possible that preacher Taylor rode the Preaching Path for a dozen years.

The meeting house was often the chief building in the community. Its primary purpose was to house the church. The common school, if one was established, often met in the meeting house. It also served other community needs.

The preacher visited each church on a rotating schedule, and often preached on Saturday and Sunday while in the community. The hour glass might run through twice before the sermon concluded.

Men and women were separated in the old church. The men entered and sat on the right side of the house. The women entered and sat on the left side of the house.

David Smith Williams, a Presbyterian ministerial student from Cumberland County, gave a contemporary view of the early Baptist in North Carolina. “From what I could learn the Baptist were an ignorant people, that their ministers were ordinary men, more or less ignorant of their own mother tongue.” Yet this same David Smith Williams had concerns about his infant baptism, and sought out an old circuit riding Baptist minister to give him a scriptural baptism. He converted to the Baptist faith, and became the preacher for Neill’s Creek Baptist Church. He was living in Sampson County in 1833 and possibly preached at Taylor’s Swamp Meeting House.

The Three Creek Baptist Church was formed in Wake County before the American Revolution and later was named Swift Creek Baptist Church. An article in the News & Observer in 1938 states that this church became the Middle Creek Primitive Baptist Church in Wake County. It is still active today.

In 1780, a group of members obtained a dismission from Middle Creek Baptist Church and organized Neill’s Creek, which is the oldest Baptist church in Harnett County. Red Neill MacNiell, a former sailor who stood six feet, six inches tall with flaming red beard, gave his name to the local creek. The newly formed church was named for the watercourse, called Neill’s Creek.

The circuit continued south to Taylor’s Swamp Meeting House. Since the name Taylor was not common to the Taylor’s Swamp community of the 1780’s, it seems evident that the circuit riding Elder William Taylor was honored by having his name placed on the newly built meeting house and near by watercourse, in northwestern Sampson County.

The Taylor’s Swamp Meeting House was most likely organized between 1784, the date of the forming of Sampson County, and 1787 the date a landmark called the “Preaching Path” was recorded.

This three church circuit was a part of the Kehukee Association in its earliest days and was affiliated with the Regular Baptist Order. In 1793, the association was split along the line of the Tar River and the southern churches were called the Neuse and the northern churches retained the name Kehukee.

There exists some false conceptions about the origin of the Missionary Baptists and the Primitive Baptists. During Elder Taylor’s circuit, the labels “Missionary” and “Primitive” did not exist. Both bodies came out of the Regular Baptist order in a divisive split over doctrine. This smoldering split took place between the years of 1827 and 1845.

The Missionary minded group were known as the new-school Baptists, and the group holding past religious views were known as the old-school Baptists.

The religious heritage along this circuit is among the oldest and richest in all this region. Its worshipers have been referred to as Regular Baptist, Primitive Baptist and Missionary Baptists.

Before George Washington was president of the United States, a Preaching Path had been blazed through the back-woods of North Carolina linking some of the oldest Baptist churches in Wake, Cumberland and Sampson Counties.

Old Middle Creek Meeting House replaced an even older Swift Creek Meeting House both were located in Wake County. A current building exists today across the road from this now packhouse.

Neill's Creek Meeting House was first in Cumberland Co. Later, Harnett Co. was created. This is the second meeting house (built in 1862 near Angier, NC) to serve the community.

Baptist Chapel Meeting House (built ca. 1846) replaced Taylor Swamp's log Meeting House. Baptist Chapel is located in Western Sampson County.

LEVELS OF RECORDS

By Charlotte R. Carrere

Before you begin to look for unusual sources, you must carefully evaluate the material you have found to that point. Questions you need to ask yourself will include the following:

a. Type of Source Material - Primary or Secondary. Have you used one to the exclusion of the other? If so, beware as each has its place in your research.

b. Have you made sure that your dates do not conflict? It is impossible for an ancestor to have a child before he/she was born or to have married at age 5 or 6.

c. Have you established a long-term residency? Or, conversely, did your ancestors move often?

d. If they moved often, have you determined why? Was it for religious, political, or economic reasons?

e. Have you proven that you haven't missed a generation? A clue to this possibly may be the lack of primary source records to link the two ancestors together.

f. Are you sure that you understand the terminology used in the records you have already searched? Remember that the meaning of some words/ phrases have changed over the years; such changes may alter the original meaning of the record.

g. Do you understand the different types of records that you are using? You need to know the date record groups were created as well as who has custody of them.

If you used transcriptions or abstracts in your work, it is most important that you know the quality of the work of the transcriber/abstractor. If you are lucky enough to be using Wynette Haun's work or Margaret Hofmann's work, treat it like money in the bank. If, however, you do not know the accuracy of the author, do go to the original record and verify the correctness of the material. With the profusion of publications now available, it is wise to be careful as many honest mistakes are made in such publications. Remember not to fall into the trap that we call "the sanctity of the printed word"!

Once you have evaluated your work and have determined the "holes" in your information, you are ready to begin to look for those elusive "other" sources. We will assume that you have carefully collected, and documented, such usual sources as birth, death, marriage, land records, wills, estates, and cemetery records. If you are like most genealogists, these will not have supplied all the answers you are looking for; then you ask "Where else can I look?"

Let's suppose that you have a situation in which you have an ancestor born in 1844. This ancestor's mother dies at birth or shortly thereafter. Further, compound your problem by having his father remarry within a year, and it is this second wife who is on the 1850 census. There is no family bible that you are aware of and no obituary. Your problem - how to find out who the mother was since there is no marriage record, no census that will even supply her first name. We will assume that you have checked the cross index to wills looking for your ancestor as a devisee. In cases like this, one often overlooked source is the guardian records. Did you say, "Why guardian records? His father did not die until he was grown." While it is true that generally a child does not have a guardian appointed while his father is still living, there are exceptions to that rule. Such an exception would exist if a child would inherit money and/or land from his maternal grandparents, aunts, or uncles. In such cases, his parent would have to be confirmed as his guardian by the court. These guardianship records will give the name of the estate. THEN you go to wills or estate records in the event of an intestate proceeding. As with all record classes, remember to check both loose original papers as well as the book copy as not all originals papers have survived. If you find such a guardianship record, it is likely that when you find the grandparents' will, it will mention "the heirs of my deceased daughter Nancy". Or a land division may allot land "to the heirs of Nancy Smith". On the subject of land divisions, often in indexing the records the compiler would index only the first name in the document. A clue to this possibility is the use of the term "et al" which means "and others".

Court minutes are often overlooked/ ignored because the vast majority of them have not been transcribed or abstracted (do remember that these terms are NOT the same). Yet you are unlikely to find a more complete picture of the day-to-day life in a community than what was recorded in the court minutes.

Did I hear you say that the county you are interested in burned or suffered some other type of record loss? Well don't get out the ashes and sackcloth just yet. Remember that if there was anything our ancestors loved it was a good case of litigation!

Naturally one of the parties to a lawsuit might not be too happy with the verdict in the county (lower) court, so they would appeal the case to the District Superior Court. In fact, they could and often did appeal the whole matter to the Supreme Court. This very love of lawsuits may also help to explain why you cannot find an ancestor's land.

Perhaps in 1850, you find "your man" on the census, and he has $1,000 in real property and is a farmer by occupation. You also know from the 1850 agriculture census that he had 600 acres of land. When you find him in 1860, he is an overseer or farm laborer and not on the agriculture schedule. The "War" has not started yet, so you know that the prohibitive taxes of the post-war period is not the answer to the loss of his property. How can you find out what happened to his land as there are no listings for him as a grantor? If he was a defendant or was a surety in a lawsuit, he may have had his land sold to satisfy the judgment. Such sales will not be listed under his name, as a rule; instead those land sales will be under the sheriff's name. You may have to read all the sheriffs' deeds for that ten-year period, but there will not be all that many.

Speaking of land records, do you record the surrounding neighbors when abstracting an ancestor's land? If not, change your habits now, as you may find those neighbors a help in determining which John Lee is truly your ancestor. Have you learned how to plot land yet? Or do you just ignore that hoping that it will go away? Do remember that if you have a problem in which you feel that your ancestor's father was a given person, but there is no deed, the estate papers only say "divided among the heirs" and the will says "all my children". You may be able, through the plotting of the supposed father's land, to locate a missing piece of land. It was not uncommon for a son to receive land and never bother to register it, simply handing it down for sometimes several generations before someone records it. If you do not know how to plot land, I strongly recommend North Carolina Research: Genealogy and Local History by Leary and Stirewalt. The section by Margaret Hofmann on land plotting is excellent.

Another interesting little note about the registering of land may be a clue as to when the father dies. Let's suppose that you were lucky enough to find a gift deed to your ancestor from his father you are so thrilled that you may over look some additional vital research clues. Let's say the deed is executed 16 Jan 1825 but it is not recorded until 7 Oct 1851. You will probably be able to come close to that date in other records as the date the father died. Reason being that as long as Daddy was alive the son was in no hurry to go down to the courthouse and pay the fee to register the deed. But once Daddy is either dead, or on his death bed, the son wants to be sure that his land is not a part of father's estate.

Earlier we touched on ways in which the census could help solve your problems. Are you really getting all the good out of census records? Or are you ignoring the pre-1850 census in favor of land records, estates, and wills? If so, you are missing many clues, not the least of which are candidates for the father of an ancestor or a clue as to the possible wife of that ancestor. Do I hear a doubting Thomas say, "All that from a pre-1850 census?" Yes, because even with the Smiths of Wayne County, you will be able to eliminate half, or even more, of the list of possible fathers simply because they do not have a son in the right age group. That may be a clue that you are familiar with, but what about a possible wife of the ancestor? Do remember that our ancestors were farmers who generally married a girl who lived nearby. After all Poppa wasn't about to let his son take the mule, or horse, to go courting, for that mule had to be rested for plowing the next day. Now naturally if the son had walked behind the plow all day and was going to have to walk to his sweetheart's house, you can be sure that she was going to live close by! Once you have determined who your ancestor's father was, begin to look at the neighbors. Which ones have daughters in the right age group to become the wife of your ancestor? Prepare a list of possibles, then check the estate records, wills, and property divisions. As a general rule, you will discover that elusive female ancestor.

Become as familiar as you possibly can with the records available on the county/counties and/or states that you are interested in. If you are researching in North Carolina, the book that will be of the most help to you is A Guide to Research Materials in the North Carolina State Archives: Section B: County Records. DO NOT overlook that last section in each county-miscellaneous. The NC State Archives has established ten categories into which the records are sorted and they are:

- Bonds
- Wills
- Court Records
- Estate Records

- Tax Records
- Military
- Census
- Legislative Papers
- Vital Statistics
- Miscellaneous Records

Note that "Miscellaneous" is last. This category is used to file records that do not "fit" in the other nine categories. Here is where you will find coroner's inquest, petitions to change names, petitions for legitimizing children, petitions to adopt children, records of former slaves, and free people of color to name just a few.

All of these categories may be more or less familiar to you. Each category has the potential of holding that special clue to solve your particular problem.

Before I discuss the categories in more detail, I want to remind you of one thing that is of primary importance when you are researching. Always "shift gears" from the 20th century to the timeframe you will be working in. If you fail to do this "time machine travel", you will undoubtedly overlook some vital sources simply because they are no longer applicable in the 20th century.

A drought with resulting crop failure, early death of the father or mother, or unexpected military duty could wreck havoc with the average family. Crop insurance was unknown, social security payments to a widow with children, or Aid to Financially Dependent Children was unheard of, and there was no dependent income for the military families.

Bonds

As a result when any of these events occurred and children were affected, apprenticeships were considered a way to care for these children. Our ancestors held the view that taxes were to be held to a minimum, and only expenditures of a governmental nature were appropriate usage for tax monies.

By law a parent could apprentice their child until that child was of legal age. Additionally, the county court could order the apprenticeship of children that they felt might become a public charge. One of the nicest things about apprentice bonds is that the age of the child is generally stated. Also included will be the name of his/her parent and the term of the apprenticeship. If the original apprenticeship bonds you are interested in have gaps in them, do remember that they will be recorded in the county court minutes.

Bastardy Bonds - when all else fails check these for your ancestors! After all, our ancestors were very human beings, not the plaster saints that many of us try to make of them. The reputed father had to pay a lying-in fee and was required to support the child for seven years. Occasionally, the woman refused to name the father, in which event she had to post a bond with sureties.

You may be lucky enough to find several marriage bonds, but don't be too upset if you don't find them. Because bonds involved cost considerably more money than banns, the majority of people married by banns rather than bonds. One alternative to missing banns/bonds can be found by reading deed records. A good example exists in Wayne County records. Only 22 marriage bonds survived but in reading the first 28 deed books, I have found proof of over 1,000 marriages for the period 1779 to 1868.

Other bonds, particularly administrators'/ executors' or guardians' bonds, will provide clues to the lifestyle of your ancestors. Guardians' bonds may yield often overlooked clues to such a variety of things as age of the child or possible remarriage of the mother. If you find a record of the child petitioning the court for a change of guardian, you will know they were 14 years of age (or older) as that was the age that they could request a change of guardian subject, of course, to the approval of the county court. While a final accounting by the guardian means that the ward is of age or, in the event the ward is a girl, she is married and her estate passes to the control of her husband. A change of guardians before the child/children were of age to request such a change is very often an indication that the mother has remarried, and her new husband has been approved as the guardian.

Wills

We all hope that we will find wills that name all the children and even grandchildren...sometimes we are lucky. However, more people died intestate than testate. It is human nature to put off doing those things which force us to acknowledge mortality. The greatest boon to anyone who is researching in North Carolina has been the publication of Dr. Thornton Mitchell's North Carolina Wills: A Testator Index, 1665-1900. This monumental work gives the name of the testator, the county in which the will was probated, the date of the probate, and the location of the original will, or if the original is missing the record book location is given. Hardly a day passes that I don't use my copy. Originally in a two volume set (which is now out of print), it has been reprinted by Genealogical Publishing Company of Baltimore, Maryland in one volume which includes corrections that have been made to the original publication. Put this one on your Santa list.

Court Records

Court Minutes - I hope that if you have not already developed a love of court minutes that you will do so. The county court minutes will give you an insight into the day-to-day life of the county not found anywhere else. Since its major role was the welfare of its people, the county court records will include the probating of wills, granting of administratorships, guardian-ships, as well as the first petition for military pensions. The Equity Court minutes are generally genealogical treasure troves as the cases mainly concerned property rights. Such minutes may tell you everything you ever wanted to know about your family as well as some things you may not have wanted to know! Higher court records are indexed and so are very easy to use. The Colonial Court Higher Court Records are now being published as well as the Minutes of the Executive Council 1664-1734. The cost of these books is most reasonable...less than $30 each.

Estate Records

As with other record classes, these are available both in loose originals and in bound volumes. Due to the mass of loose originals, they are the only record group not available on microfilm. Because of the excellent arrangement of these originals by the State Archives, many researchers ignore the bound volumes. Please don't overlook the book copies as that oh, so important bit of information may be hiding there.

Tax Records

Tax Records are another often-overlooked source. These records are very helpful in reconstructing missing census records as well as being a partial agricultural census in that most of them give number of acres owned, or lots owned in a town.

Military Records

Military Records are an excellent example of the need to shift gears in your thinking. Some of you may remember a popular World War II song that went "they're either too grassy green or too mossy gray". In the colonial wars, the Revolutionary War, and through the War Between the States, the male population was not considered "too grassy green or mossy gray" to serve in the defense of the colony/state/country. It is important to also remember that pensions for military service were not automatically given. The veteran had to prove desperate financial need to receive a pension. In the case of Confederate veterans or their widows, the financial conditions of the southern states after the "War" precluded the payments of pensions only to the most impoverished veterans. North Carolina has retained custody of the Confederate pensions records and has an index to them. Do remember to check not only the surviving original pension applications, but to also check the records of the Auditor General. Not all the actual applications survived, but since the Auditor had to account for all monies spent, he kept a list of pensions paid each year.

Census Records

Most of you have done at least some census work, but I find that many researchers tend to neglect this area of research. They rely instead on other record groups for information. Remind yourself that each category of records is important to your work. We have briefly touched on the use of census in proving a variety of possible solutions to problems. The census is the one category that is a federal record not a state record.

Legislative Papers

Legislative papers are another ignored/overlooked source of information. On a state level they can be compared in many ways to the county court minutes. While not indexed, they are arranged chronologically with each letter, bill, petition, etc. clearly noted at the beginning of the individual document. In the event of a county's loss of records, petitions to divide a county, build a new courthouse, etc. may be your only proof of your ancestor having lived there. Have your heard the tale of an early ancestor getting a divorce? You read the court minutes trying to find proof of this "scandal" to no avail. You didn't find it because you were looking in the wrong place. Petitions for divorce were heard in the legislature, and there were two kinds: absolute divorce and divorce from bed and board. By far the most common was divorce from bed and board. This form removed each partner from the debts of the other, and the wife was treated as a femme sole. Its advantage was that it removed any possible question as to the legitimacy of any issue of the marriage. Believe me that some of these are most interesting reading!

Vital Statistics

Birth, delayed birth, and death records began to be recorded in Oct. 1913 in North Carolina. Marriage by license by law began in 1868 when the state was readmitted to the Union. Prior to that, marriage was by banns or bonds, with most counties starting marriage registers in 1850-51. Because of the lateness of these records, we southerners face more of a challenge that some of our Yankee friends in proving such events.

Miscellaneous Records

Miscellaneous records are last, but not least, of the record categories. Just remember that this was a "catch all" for records that did not fit into any of the other nine classes. Included will be such diverse things as petitions to adopt children, change names, legitimize children, road and bridge committees, coroner's reports (now that's an interesting item), to mention just a few.

You should remember the adage that a historian does not have to be a genealogist, but a genealogist must be a historian. The more insight that you have into the events that shaped your ancestors' lives and put yourself in his place, the more likely you are to be successful in your research. Never be satisfied with one date or one name from just one source; to do so is to commit the unpardonable sin in genealogy. Clues are often overlooked by the blinders we wear...your grandmother said thus and so, and on this premise you refuse to open your mind to other possibilities.

WAKE COUNTY POOR HOUSE RECORDS

Submitted by Cathy Elias

As noted from information given in a Raleigh News and Observer article on May 4, 1880, the Wake County Poor House was at that time located 6 miles northwest of the city beyond Crabtree.(It has been determined that this area is near the present site of the E. C. Brooks School in North Hills.) The buildings were on two hills with a deep ravine between them. The land, called Parish Grove and containing 400 acres, was donated to the county in 1825 and the institution was opened in 1826. The institution remained at this location until after the turn of the 20th century.

Although not indexed, the Poor House Records can be very informative in providing many names in the Wake County area. The excerpt that is listed is only a small sample of what can be found. In reviewing this excerpt, it should be pointed out that the five members listed as present were at one time all county commissioners and Sam'l Rayner and J. Richard Caswell were the first African American Wake County commissioners.

Please come to the Olivia Raney Local History Library and explore the entire reel as well as others in our Microforms room.

THE NORTH CAROLINA YEAR BOOK – 1902

Submitted by Hope Blackford

This issue contains the beginning of a transcription project to extract information related to Wake County from annual editions of the North Carolina Yearbook. This series of directories is housed at the Olivia Raney Local History Library and contains a wide array of information (people in government, business, ads, etc.) that will be of interest to the researcher seeking family history information about a particular ancestor or specific institutions, courts, and departments throughout the state. There are censuses and statistics for various items but the transcriber will only be working with information that references Wake County. The Year Books I will be transcribing will be for the years 1902, 1905, 1911, 1912, 1914, 1916, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1937, 1939, and 1941.

I have not annotated categories where other people from other parts of the state are listed. If the journal index indicates a page number for your ancestor, check the entire page as some people are mentioned more than once.

The beginning of this transcription will be for state and county with references for Wake County, and then follow with information for each town.

INFORMATION BY MAIL

The primary function of the North Carolina State Archives (NCSA) is to preserve and protect North Carolina's public records. A search room and professional staff are provided to assist the general public in the use of these records. The Archives is neither authorized nor staffed to conduct in-depth research. For example, the NCSA cannot answer such questions as "Who are John Doe's parents?".

Residents of North Carolina may request information by mail, by fax, or by e-mail. An e-mail request form is available on our website (see below for web address). There is no search fee for answering inquiries by North Carolina residents.

Non-residents of North Carolina may request information by mail only. A $20.00 search fee, established by North Carolina statute 121.5 (d), is required for all inquiries by non-residents of North Carolina. This search fee also covers the cost of copying up to 20 pages of records. Non-resident inquiries that do not contain the proper search fee will be returned. A search fee is charged for each record category that is consulted and for each name checked against a record category. Personal checks or money orders should be made payable to North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources.

All inquiries must include name, county, and time period (within a ten-year time frame). Please limit your request to one record category for one person per inquiry. Responses to inquiries will include a statement of copying costs, if applicable. Do not send estimated copying costs with your original request. Your request will be returned if it includes estimated copying costs.

For inquiries received by mail, by fax, or by e-mail, the NCSA staff can check the following record categories. Listed in each category are the standard sources consulted.
