ABOUT OUR JOURNAL

Wake Treasures is the journal of the Wake County Genealogical Society (WCGS) and is free to members. Semiannual issues are identified as Winter/Spring and Summer/Fall. Past issues of Wake Treasures are sold in volume sets. An order form is inserted at the center of the journal and is also available on our web site.

We endeavor to regularly publish primary source documents with historical or genealogical significance for Wake County, North Carolina. We will also publish primary source documents from related counties if there is no Genealogical or Historical Society serving that county. We welcome articles about methodology and research experience as well as articles portraying Wake County residents, places, and events of the past. We seek a balance of time periods and hope to address the needs of both new and experienced genealogists.

Proposals and submissions may be sent by email or postal mail. References used to compile an article must be included. Depending on the nature of a submission, minor editing may be applied, but no substantive changes will be made. Errors in original documents that are transcribed should not be corrected, but notations may be made if they are clearly indicated.

Neither WCGS nor the Journal Committee shall be held responsible for the accuracy of submitted articles. This is the sole responsibility of the contributor. Documented content corrections that are submitted to the Editor will appear in a later issue.

Permission to reproduce or quote from an article published in any issue of Wake Treasures must be obtained in writing from the author or authors. Write to the author in care of WCGS.

BONDS IN THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE ARCHIVES – APPRENTICE

By Debbie Blake, NC State Archives

Along with apprentice, marriage and guardian bonds, one of the larger series of bonds in the North Carolina State Archives is the bastardy bonds. As the name implies, these bonds deal with the birth of or the expected birth of a bastard child. Bastardy has been a part of society for most of our history with differing attitudes towards it. Regardless of societal attitudes, early in our country, public officials recognized bastardy as a fact of life but did not intend for the child to become a financial burden on the county. For that reason a warrant was issued and the woman brought before the county justices of the peace. They wanted to know the father's name so that he could financially maintain the child. Many times the woman under oath did name the man and he was subsequently brought before the justices. If he agreed that he was the father, or the justices found him guilty, the man posted a bond for support of the child. If the woman refused to name the father, she and her relatives had to post the bond for the support of the bastard child.

Information of interest on the bond include, of course, the mother's name, and, if she named him, that of the reported father. The identification of the father in some cases has to be considered with a certain amount of skepticism by the researchers. It is a reality that the woman may not know who the real father is, or that she did know who it was but, for whatever reason, named another man as the father. While a man might object to her naming of him, the justices could proclaim him guilty anyway.

Bastardy records, which are arranged chronologically, can include any of the following papers: warrants for the woman and the reputed father, examinations of each of the above, the appearance bond of the reputed father, the bastardy bond itself and/or the warrant to collect judgment, as well as receipts for the care of the child. While the above refers to the loose papers in this records series, for some counties, there may be volumes as well.

The value of bastardy bonds or records to researchers is significant., Establishing the children of a couple is often difficult under the best of circumstances since children came and went with alarming regularity from one census year to the next. A woman could give birth to 5 or more children between census years and none might live to be listed on the either one. Such children are almost impossible to find unless some private record, such as a Bible record or tombstone, is found. Children often appear in a list by birth date on the census. Since their names are listed after the head of household and wife it appears that all have the same father. Bastardy bonds can often indicate that one of those children had a completely different father.

Although it may be more than we actually want to know about our ancestors, the appearance of a bastardy bond tells the researcher something about that ancestor. Who was the man the woman made an alliance with and did she ultimately marry him? Someone else? Did she marry someone else or remain single and raise the child alone? Does either ancestor appear more than once in the bonds? Does the woman have to apprentice the child because she cannot support him/her? Discovering answers for such questions will provide valuable information about that ancestor.

As with other types of bonds, bastardy bonds are often overlooked and underused. These records have much to offer the researcher who decides to venture away from the standard records. It may give us more than we bargained for in the way of information but will be invaluable in learning about our ancestors.

APPEALS FOR FOOD FROM DESTITUTE FAMILIES, WAKE CO., 1865

Abstracted By Jocelyn Powell

Civil War Collection, NC State Archives, Box 65, folder 9

At the conclusion of the Civil War many families in Wake County, as elsewhere, were left destitute. Many men did not return from the war, others were incapacitated, and the old men, women, and children were unable to get enough provisions off their land, nor did they have money to feed and clothe themselves. Much of the land had been stripped of crops, and few animals were left. Many makeshift enterprises were tried in order to provide for the poor. More fortunate citizens, local governing boards, and charitable organizations from the North pitched in to try to relieve the suffering. For a time people could buy food and supplies cheaply from the U.S. Army commissary. In August of 1865 the county court authorized the wardens of the poor to borrow enough money to meet the most pressing needs of the poor. In August and September of 1865, many people were proposed by their neighbors or the local Justice of the Peace as eligible for relief. (Source: Wake, Capital County of North Carolina, Elizabeth Reid Murray, Capital County Publishing Company, Raleigh, 1981, pp. 556-557)

The following list is abstracted from a file of slips of paper on which the names of people considered eligible for a subsidy were written, along with the place, date, and the person vouching for the worthiness of the applicant. Almost all were datelined Raleigh; those that mention another location are cited. The person or persons whose name(s) follow the semicolon in each entry were those who nominated their neighbors or, in some cases, relatives, for the subsidy. A few requests also bore the signatures of witnesses.

VISIT THE ALLEN COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

By Cathy Elias

Did you know that the second largest genealogical research collection in the US is located in northeastern Indiana? The Allen County Public Library in Ft. Wayne is well worth your visit. My husband and I first used this library in the spring of this year, and we are now wondering what took us so long to discover it!

"User-friendly" definitely describes the ACPL. The atmosphere is laid-back, yet professional. The learning curve is very short – you can be at work shortly after entering the building. Everything you'll need is easy to locate, and knowledgeable staff are available to answer questions. Finding aids for various states and general topics are located near the entrance to the collection (which occupies one entire floor of the large public library building). Within each state, the counties are arranged alphabetically on the shelves. When it comes time for lunch, you can save precious hours (and keep your parking spot) by visiting the soup, sandwich and dessert cart on the first floor of the library.

You also can save valuable research time by visiting their website beforehand: <www.acpl.lib.in.us>. In addition to finding their opening hours, directions, etc., you'll want to see what they have on the counties you're researching. While they try to have something on every county in the U.S., some locations are better represented than others. This is still a growing collection, after all, and they're some-what dependent on donations and what they're able to purchase. Keep in mind, also, that their extensive microforms holdings are not all evident in the online catalog; you will need to use the card catalog in that section once you arrive.

Once you've stacked your research notebooks and supplies on one of the spacious work tables, getting your bearings comes next. Nearby are rows of computers, set up for searching their online catalog, PERSI, <FamilySearch.org>, or various internet resources, such as:

- <HeritageQuestOnline.com>
- <NewEnglandAncestors.org>
- <Ancestry.com>

When you have call numbers in hand, you'll head for the open stacks. Small book trucks are available for your use, so feel free to bring as many books back to your table as you want. Good quality, high-tech copy machines are just steps away. You may use coins for the 10 cent per page cost, or you may prefer to get one of the free copy cards from the information desk and fill it with larger amounts to save time.

What sorts of books will you find here? Nearly 200,000 volumes on US genealogy and local history – everything from vital records to cemetery indexes to land records to county histories. Family genealogies: over 55,000 of them in print or on microfiche. The library also has over 5100 current subscriptions to English language periodicals. You may already be familiar with PERSI (PERiodical Source Index) for finding articles on specific subjects. Well, here are the staff who do all that indexing.

In addition to the general genealogical resources, there are a number of specific record groups to be aware of. All of the Federal census records are here on microfilm, along with the book and Soundex indexes. A good collection of mid-decade State censuses is also available. Many military records are in the microfilm collection, including Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Indian Wars and Disturbances, the Mexican War, the Civil War, World War I, the Korean War, and indexes to the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection.

The City Directory holdings are something to behold as well. Nearly 50,000 Polk Directories for 1964 to the present fill row upon row of shelves. Earlier years, beginning as long ago as 1785, are found on either fiche or film. Making a copy from microforms costs only 20 cents.

Some of the other specific collections at ACPL are:

- Passenger lists and indexes (including most of the National Archive microfilm holdings)
- Native American records
- African-American records
- Canadian records
- British Isles records
- Germany records

I hope that I now have you considering a visit to the Allen County Public Library. If you're traveling through the Midwest, take the time to stop at Ft. Wayne – you won't be disappointed. It's an ideal repository for searching the records of many locations with one stop. It's now one of our favorite research libraries, and we've found material there that was not available anywhere else.

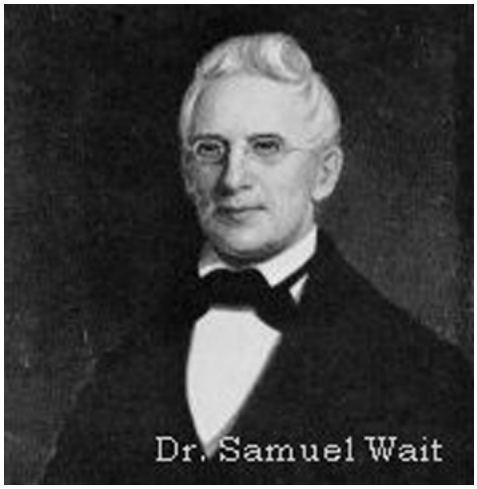
THE TALE OF TWO PREACHERS

By Donald F. Winslow

The Great Migration began during the mid-sixteen hundreds. There was a large influx of English Puritans that arrived from East Anglia to settle in Massachusetts during the period 1629 to 1641. English gentry and indentured servants who left the south of England from 1643 to 1675 settled in Virginia. Pennsylvania and Delaware were settled beginning in 1655 to 1725 by a migration of Quakers from England's north midlands. From 1717 to 1775 immigrants from Scotland and Ireland (the Scots-Irish) settled in the Carolinas and the "Back Country". "The Tale of Two Preachers" begins with this group of hearty souls.



Dr. Samuel Wait

The Scots-Irish viewed America as a place where they could keep their customs; and, escape the persecution and the misery they were suffering in their homelands. Thousands of Scots-Irish left for America to land at either Philadelphia or Newcastle, Delaware where the majority of the early settlers were Quakers. The newcomers did not receive a warm welcome from the Quakers who were astonished by the Scots-Irish mannerisms, dress, accents and their conduct. Quaker leaders encouraged the Scots-Irish to leave for what they described as a more suitable place. As a result, many of the Scots-Irish went south to North Carolina and South Carolina. Some of them settled in eastern and central North Carolina. More than half of them went west to settle in Appalachia. The paths taken by the Scots-Irish that settled in eastern and central North Carolina were to cross with the paths taken by the "Two Preachers".

David Hackett Fischer, in his book Albion's Seed, relates that the Scots-Irish immigrants did not come from the bottom of British society. More than half were either skilled craftsmen or tradesmen. They were a proud group of people who were grossly misunderstood by the English gentry. There were Anglicans, Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists and members other reformed churches. Some did not practice their religion or have a church home. These were the people who Thomas Meredith and Samuel Wait considered viable candidates for membership in the Baptist Church.

Samuel Wait was born December 19, 1789 in White Creek, Washington County, New York. His parents were not religious. It was his grandfather, William Wait, a Baptist Minister, who made sure that Samuel learned about the Baptist faith. Wait felt a calling to the ministry. He was licensed to preach for one year at the Middletown Vermont Baptist Church. During this period Wait decided to seek ordination as Baptist minister. He accepted a call from the First Baptist Church in Sharon, Massachusetts where he was ordained in 1818. One year after his ordination, he married Sarah Conant Merriam, the granddaughter of Revolutionary War patriot Ebenezer Conant.

In 1820 Wait decided that he needed additional theological training. He resigned his pastorate to go to Philadelphia where he became a student at the Theological Institution of the Baptist General Convention. His mentor and teacher was Dr. William Staughton. Sarah remained in Sharon where she worked to provide financial support for her husband. This was the first of many long separations the couple would endure.

In 1821, Dr. Staughton left Philadelphia to become President of Columbian College in Washington, D.C. (Now George Washington University). The Theological Institution of the Baptist General Convention was merged into Columbian College. Samuel Wait joined Dr. Staughton in Washington where he continued his studies. He received a Master of Arts degree from Waterville College in Maine (Now Colby College). This degree was conferred based on the completion of Wait's studies at Columbian College. Subsequent to his being graduated Wait became the first Principal of Columbian College Preparatory School. In 1822 his wife joined him in Washington. It was the first time they had seen each other in over a year and a half. The Waits were blessed with their first child, Anne Eliza Wait.

Columbian College underwent a severe financial crisis. Dr. Staughton and Wait were asked by the school's Board of Trustees to solicit funds in North Carolina. While traveling across the State of North Carolina a freak accident occurred that was to have important ramifications for Samuel Wait and for the State of North Carolina. A spooked horse destroyed the wagon in which he and Dr. Staughton had been riding. Staughton was badly injured in the accident. They were forced to return to New Bern. This event was a factor in Wait's decision to leave Columbian College. He left Washington for Charleston, South Carolina where he served as a missionary. Once again he was separated from his family.

Thomas Meredith

In 1827 he returned to New Bern and soon afterward was joined there by his wife and child. It was here that he met the Rev. Thomas Meredith. They were two of the five trained Baptist clergymen in North Carolina. Thomas Meredith was the only minister with a classical education. Wait wrote in his diary "The state of the ministry all around this region is deplorable." Undoubtedly, Thomas Meredith agreed with him because one of the major goals undertaken by these two men was to open a seminary to educate young men and to prepare them for the ministry. It was while he was in New Bern that his only son, William Cary, died. He was in Vermont with his mother who visiting her seriously ill mother.

Meredith, the son of an influential Quaker Philadelphia family, was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1816. He intended to become a lawyer but changed his mind after his mother's death. He decided to become a Baptist minister as a result of his becoming familiar with Baptist theology and studying the New Testament. He entered the Theological Institution of the Baptist General Convention to study with Dr. William Staughton. Meredith was married to Georgia Sears. They had eleven children. Meredith, like Wait, was to spend a lot of time away from his family.

It is not known whether or not Meredith and Wait knew each other prior to their meeting at New Bern. It is known that they shared the same interests; the same objectives for their denomination; and, the same fervor to spread their faith. Meredith recommended Wait for the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of New Bern where he been pastor before accepting a call to become pastor of the Baptist church in Edenton, North Carolina. Both Wait and Meredith worked hard to awaken what was referred to as "the spiritual slumber of North Carolina Baptists". Wait left the pulpit once again, this time to join Thomas Meredith as a missionary. Both men traveled across the State of North Carolina "saving souls".

It was not long before they realized that if the Baptist Church were to grow in North Carolina an active and unified North Carolina Baptist Convention and seminary were essential. They worked hard to satisfy both needs in the face of significant opposition to a unified Baptist Convention. There was a group in the church who were against the convention because they believed the North Carolina Baptist Convention as envisioned would result in all the Baptists in North Carolina being in one single organization with the stated goal of "intellectual improvement". This group was against building a seminary and they had other issues with respect to the Baptist State Convention and the publication of a Baptist periodical. They left the church to form the Primitive Baptist denomination. In 1830 the North Carolina Baptist Convention was formed in Greenville, North Carolina.

1834 was a busy year for Meredith and Wait. The Baptist Convention authorized the purchase of a farm in Wake Forest where a seminary was built. The Wake Forest Manual Labor Institute began with an enrollment of 16 men and The Reverend Samuel Wait as its President. The seminarians worked on the farm. The vegetables produced were sold and the profits were used to fund the seminary. It was not long before the Institute had 70 students. The Wake Forest Manual Labor Institute became Wake Forest College in 1839 at which time the manual labor requirement was removed. It is interesting to note that Samuel Wait was President and Thomas Meredith was elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees. A few years later Thomas Meredith was the President and Samuel Wait was the Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Meredith founded the State's Baptist monthly newspaper, The Biblical Recorder. In 1834 it became the leading Baptist publication in North Carolina. In 1838 he founded The Oxford Seminary for Women; and, he became its first President. Samuel Wait became President upon Meredith's death in 1850. The Oxford Seminary for Women became Raleigh's Meredith College. Samuel Wait resigned from the Presidency of Wake Forest in 1845. He functioned as a minister at several churches; and, he remained a member of the Wake Forest Board of Trustees until 1867. Wait enjoyed living near the Wake Forest campus. He strolled the campus almost daily until his death in 1871. He and his wife Sarah are buried on the "Wake Forest campus"; which is now the campus of the Southeastern Baptist College.

"The two Preachers" were kindred spirits who worked together often leaving their families for long periods of time. They had the insight to understand what was required to help the people in the community they served. They had the patience to overcome the many obstacles that confronted them. They worked tirelessly to achieve their goals; and, last but not least they left behind two highly respected institutions of higher learning. Their primary objectives were spiritual in scope but the heritage they left had a significant and favorable temporal impact. They never forgot that they were bound to serve the people. They left North Carolina and Wake Forest a better place. The Reverend Thomas Meredith and The Reverend Doctor Samuel Wait are truly "Wake County Treasures" to this day.

Authors Note: Samuel Wait and his wife Sarah produced an enormous amount of correspondence with each other while Wait needed to be away. This correspondence provides an exceptional view of their quality of life and their commitment during those relatively long periods of separation.

The correspondence was an important source of information in connection with the above article. There also is important correspondence with relatives and individuals outside of the family. This correspondence is located at the Z. Smith Reynolds Special Collections Library, Wake Forest University. Sarah Helms Winslow, Samuel Wait's granddaughter (Gen 5) has select copies of the family correspondence that was provided to her by the Baptist Special Collections Librarian.

WAKE COUNTY DEATH INDEX – JANUARY- JUNE 1906-1919

Abstracted by Hope Blackford

North Carolina Death Certificates 1906-1919
[Introduction written by Karen-Marie Allen, Head Librarian, Olivia Raney Library]

On 10 March 1913, the North Carolina General Assembly ratified an act requiring the registration of births and deaths in the state; virtually full compliance was achieved by 1920, with some delayed birth records for earlier dates eventually added.

The first microfilm in the North Carolina Death Index records deaths filed in the early years of collection. The county of death was recorded as a numeric code. Wake County is number 92 and when you view the image; you will see the county written in that way.

Records on this early index were organized by county and date of death. Here is an abstract of those records for Wake County from this first film. They have been arranged in alphabetical order. Please note that the names have not been included in the general index to this journal but it is quite easy to scan the pages for your family member.

Death certificates contain two types of information: information about the person and information about the death.

Information about the person may include: first name, last name, middle name, age, sex, race, date of birth, place of birth (state or country), marital status (including number of children), spouse's name, occupation, father's name and birth place, mother's name and birth place, and signature and address of person providing information about the deceased.

Information about the death may include: date of death, primary cause of death, contributing cause of death, duration of the primary and contributing causes of death, signature and address of the physician, former residence if death occurred away from home, place of death, place of burial, date of burial, signature and address of undertaker, date when the certificate was filed, and signature of the local registrar.

Not all of this information will be on every death certificate and forms were not always complete but these documents still provide a wealth of information to guide genealogists in the search for that elusive ancestor.

QUERY

"The Hortons of Nansemond County, Virginia and Wake County, North Carolina (1700-1800)" by Francis Allison Gregory and Robert Edgeworth Horton, Sr. is a manuscript located in the hanging files of the North Carolina Archives and Library that documents that David Horton, Sr., who died in 1784, descended from Joseph Horton who resided in Nansemond County, Virginia and later in the Granville/Bute/Warren County areas in North Carolina in the 1760s.

This information is further documented by DNA testing of two documented descendants of David Horton, Sr., who died in 1784: Craig Horton, who descends from David Horton, Jr.; and Elizabeth Robertson and Robert Edgeworth Horton, who descend from Samuel Horton, the eldest son of David Horton, who died in 1784. (David Horton, Jr. and Samuel Horton were brothers.) Their DNA matched up the line to Joseph Horton of Nansemond County.

The DNA testing by Dan Wharton of New York City disproves "The Hortons in America" by White's claim that David Horton who died in 1784 likely descends from Barnabus Horton of Long Island, New York. This misinformation is likely the basis of several DAR lineage memberships and Colonial Dames memberships.

Joseph Horton of "Tide Water, Virginia" and Granville/Bute/Warren Counties of North Carolina is a less romantic Horton character than Barnabus Horton of New York (a prominant sea captain in the middle 1600s).

According to the DNA testing, Joseph Horton of Nansemond County, Virginia was neither a descendant of Daniel Horton of Nansemond County, who lived there in 1717/1718, or Barnabus Horton of New York, who was almost 100 years prior in the early 1600s.

We can only assume that Joseph Horton of Nansemond County, Virginia and the Granville area of North Carolina must have come directly from England or Iceland where other Hortons came to the USA from.

If anyone has valid other information regarding Joseph Horton of Granville whose will is there in 1763, please send it to me.

Thanks.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE ARCHIVES INFORMATION BY MAIL

The primary function of the North Carolina State Archives (NCSA) is to preserve and protect North Carolina's public records. A search room and professional staff are provided to assist the general public in the use of these records. The Archives is neither authorized nor staffed to conduct in-depth research. For example, the NCSA cannot answer such questions as "Who are John Doe's parents?"

Residents of North Carolina may request information by mail, by fax, or by e-mail. An e-mail request form is available on our website (see below for web address). There is no search fee for answering inquiries by North Carolina residents.

Non-residents of North Carolina may request information by mail only. A $20.00 search fee, established by North Carolina statute 121.5 (d), is required for all inquiries by non-residents of North Carolina. This search fee also covers the cost of copying up to 20 pages of records. Non-resident inquiries that do not contain the proper search fee will be returned. A search fee is charged for each record category that is consulted and for each name checked against a record category. Personal checks or money orders should be made payable to North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources.

All inquiries must include name, county, and time period (within a ten-year time frame). Please limit your request to one record category for one person per inquiry. Responses to inquiries will include a statement of copying costs, if applicable. Do not send estimated copying costs with your original request. Your request will be returned if it includes estimated copying costs.

For inquiries received by mail, by fax, or by e-mail, the NCSA staff can check the following record categories. Listed in each category are the standard sources consulted.
