We welcome articles about methodology and research experience as well as articles portraying Wake County residents, places, and events of the past. We seek a balance of time periods and hope to address the needs of both new and experienced genealogists.

Proposals and submissions may be sent by email or postal mail. References used to compile an article must be included. Depending on the nature of a submission, minor editing may be applied, but no substantive changes will be made. TARHEEL TRAVELERS

By Debbi Blake, North Carolina State Archives

The Tarheel State was settled by travelers, and many have traveled into and out of the state since then. While in the past traveling might have been done only out of necessity, presently, and indeed in the more recent past, traveling has been done for pleasure as well as necessity.

Ancient peoples probably traveled to meet their needs, following food or escaping weather. Ancient travelers also went on pilgrimages. Many sites in the world were, and still are, places of pilgrimage. Stonehenge and Jerusalem are two good examples. Some places can be a pilgrimage for one person and a tourist trap for another. For some, Stratford-upon-Avon would be a pilgrimage, but for many other people it is just another quaint English village. In our more recent past, people have traveled in order to relocate. Indeed, the US was populated by people who immigrated here. Although explorers have been doing it for centuries, business travel is also a product of the more recent past.

Travel for pleasure was once the domain of the wealthy. In the 18th century, wealthy young lords and ladies made the Grand Tour, traveling through Europe and Asia. Many romantic poets like Byron and Shelley wrote about their travels and stayed months and even years in certain locations. Writers such as Mark Twain and Charles Dickens have written extensively about their travels as well. One of the most well-known periods of travel was the late 19th and early 20th centuries. This period, often referred to as the Gilded Age, opened up travel on a much larger scale. It was still the purview of the wealthy, but the steam ship allowed many immigrants to leave their old lives behind. The movie "Titanic" showed the extravagant style that many people expected of their travel experience during this time. Their travel journals relate the opulence of their journeys. Certainly less extravagant was the immigrant's experience. Many of them left travel journals as well, so we can get a sense of their very different journey. Gilded Age travel often followed much the same course as the Grand Tour in an earlier century. The places and the sites the former travelers visited were touted in their writings and became destinations for the Gilded Age traveler as well. These same places tend to be the big tourist destinations of today.

Another sort of mini golden age of travel occurred in the 1950s and '60s as airline travel became inexpensive enough for the upper middle class. No longer was the trip made primarily by ocean liner; it was now fashionable to travel around the world by air.

By looking at travel diaries and journals, we can learn what the writer saw, felt, what people they met, what purchases they made, what money they spent, and the places they went. Journals can contain so much more than just writing, however. Many types of ephemera are included in travel journals. Postcards are often pasted into journals. Highly collectible, these postcards can serve so many purposes. If they were mailed home, they give additional information about a particular trip, but the front of the card often gives a vintage view of something the writer wanted to share. The Hobson PITTMAN Papers (PC 1620.13) even contains his old passports. Just the stamps on the pages are pretty and part of a sadly bygone time.

Like all primary documents, travel journals can present some challenges. The principle challenge is often the handwriting, but with perseverance, that can generally be overcome. If they used punctuation at all, sometimes people used eccentric forms of it, such as dashes and strange abbreviation. Once studied, however, a person's handwriting begins to become clear. Journals and diaries contain people's thoughts and feelings as they are traveling and they may not be politically correct by today's standards.

The North Carolina State Archives has many travel journals among its holdings. There are journals for each of the time periods listed below. While your ancestor might not have left one, if your ancestor took a similar journey, someone else's journal can give a sense of what the travels were like.

Rose O'Neal GREENHOW	PC 1226
Clarence H. POE Papers	PC 256
William R. VALENTINER Papers	PC 1556

Below are examples of interesting individuals who left travel journals or diaries.

Clarence H. POE, editor of The Progressive Farmer, wrote a journal for a trip around the world 1910-1911. On his trip, which is mainly in the Orient, POE wrote articles that were later published as a book entitled Where Half the World is Waking Up. POE's journal is typed with editing marks made by him as he was working on the manuscript. (PC 256.1)

Gertrude WEIL, social, political, civic, and religious activist who worked for women's suffrage, traveled a great deal and left many journals. Her first trip abroad was in 1903, and in 1906, she took a trip with a small group led by Mary JOBE, a professor at New York City Normal College. NCSA has journals for both of the above trips and ones for 1912 and 1934, as well as one for a trip to Mexico in 1947. The Archives also has letters exchanged by WEIL family members during such travels. (PC 1488.38)

Hobson PITTMAN, an artist born in Tarboro in 1900, has a collection of papers that include an itinerary for a trip he took to the Orient in the summer of 1966. The journals often include small sketches mixed into the text. The Archives also has his journal of a trip to Bermuda in July and August of 1921. Pasted inside is a menu from the ship; and elsewhere in the book are maps, postcards, and pictures from brochures, in addition to his text. (PC 1620)

Sarah HUNTER, wife of Aaron Burtis HUNTER, Episcopal priest, who served as principal of St. Augustine School until retiring in 1916, traveled to Europe at least 13 times between 1899 and 1923. Her journals are filled with day-to-day happenings and ephemera. HUNTER served as rector in churches in Dresden, Germany; Geneva, Switzerland; and Florence, Italy; and his wife's journals give the perspective of someone living in a foreign country for extended periods. The journals are full of ephemera such as postcards, pictures cut out of brochures, photographs, programs, cards, etc. Typical pages from HUNTER's journal include ticket stubs, cards of works of art, and photos. (PC 142)

The North Carolina State Archives has many collections of private papers some of which contain travel diaries and journals, as well as letters from other countries. The previous list includes only the larger collections.

The fragility of the original material is a very important aspect of travel journals. The ink may be fading, the acidic paper flaking, items falling out as old glue gives way—these are just some of the problems with journals. While they can be studied in the Search Room, they cannot be copied on a while-you-wait basis, and the cost to have them copied will be high since most of them are long, as well as bound, volumes. As long as no flash is used, patrons in the Search Room are welcome to use a digital camera to take photographs of documents.

Travel journals can provide a window into the journeys of those traveling before us. Such primary documents bring home the immediacy of history and the experiences of people of bygone eras.

USING CEMETERIES TO IDENTIFY THE UNKNOWN

By Jerry Stancil

Reprinted with permission from Wilson County Genealogical Society

What cemeteries can do to improve your research efforts and what information you can expect to obtain.

1. Birth dates and death dates.
2. Surnames of female spouse.
3. Names of unknown spouse who may have died in early childbirth.
4. Names of children who died young and were never recorded on census Records.
5. Unknown children who appear on early census (1840 or before) – may have been buried as late as 1850. These children and adults will now be identified when located with siblings and parents. If unknown dies as an adult and unknown is a male, he could have a spouse and children. If so, search "settlement of estates" during this time. A family member or members will be executor. Unknown will now be identified.
6. Name of a twin who died early.
7. New names not recognized as family names may be family of spouse or maternal family.
8. You also may identify parents of a specific family member you were looking.
9. Neighbors will be buried there. These neighbors will provide spouses for your ancestors and their children.
10. These new names will lead you to new locations to research.
11. Locations of cemeteries will most often mark locations of family home place.

How to locate an ancestor

1. Use resources in library.
2. Volumes I, II, III, and IV for Wilson County Cemeteries. [Ed. Note: See past issues of Wake Treasures for Wake County cemetery survey listings.]
3. Wayne County Cemeteries Vol. #1, Gravestone Inscriptions, Wayne County Historical Assn.
4. Johnston County cemeteries.
5. Use your own family records.
6. Wills, land grants and maps (buy a topo map).
7. Use permanent landmarks (rivers and streams) to locate cemetery.
8. Ask your oldest living family members for information.
9. Ask your friends who have also done research in the area.

Copyright © 2010 Wake County Genealogical Society

Take a road trip

1. Take along a friend or family member who is researching in the same area.
2. Buy or borrow a GPS to record exact location of grave or cemetery.
3. Take chalk or shaving cream [Ed Note: Debate continues on this issue.] to apply to head stone surface to enable you to clearly read weather worn data.
4. Take your own family records. Also, extra paper and pencil to correct or add to your information. You will find people who will be added to your family tree and their family and spouses.
5. Take along marriage records and land deeds.
6. Take with you all information you have on the area you will search.
7. Take a camera (digital will give you instant images of your finds). This way you can do research after you return home.

How to identify a cemetery

1. Look for small sections of wooded areas in open fields.
2. Look for a group of cedar trees. A lone cedar tree marks a single grave or a very small family.
3. Don't overlook small, uncleared patches on road edge. Highway and improved road systems often pass through cemeteries.
4. When a likely looking site is found with no markers:
   a) Probe the area for unmarked graves and broken and/or covered stones.
   b) If broken stones are found, fit pieces to identify names and dates.
   c) If no stones but obvious graves, look in surrounding wooded areas for stones.
   d) If graves are found, make GPS recordings. This will easily enable others to locate grave site when additional information is obtained or to enable others to find grave site.

SCHOOL HISTORY – EPISCOPAL SCHOOL

Transcribed by Marie Cooke

EPISCOPAL SCHOOL, 1823-1840.[2]
CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

The subscriber having removed to the City of Raleigh, would take under his charge eight or ten young gentlemen, for instruction in the Latin and Greek Languages, and in the Elementary Branches of the Mathematics. His wish is, to receive that number in his family as boarders, that their moral and religious deportment and improvement, may be as carefully attended to, as their literary acquirements.

The course of study will be directed on a principle different from the modern mode of tuition, and calculated to make the students sounds and thoroughly grounded classical scholars. The school will commence on the first Monday in January next; and there will be two vacations in the year, corresponding in time and duration with those of the University of the State.

The price of board and tuition will be $100 per session paid in advance, which will include every expense but that of books and paper.—

The price of tuition alone will be $30 per session, likewise paid in advance.

Geo. W. FREEMAN.

Raleigh, Dec. 20, 1823.

In giving the sanction of my approval to Mr. FREEMAN, personally, and to the plan of tuition proposed to be pursued by him, I am happy to present to the Episcopal families of this Diocese, the opportunity of putting a portion of their youth, under the immediate care of a gentleman fully competent to what he undertakes; who in a few months will be in Holy Orders – and engaged both by duty and interest, to the most earnest endeavors to instill into the minds of those under his care, not only the principles of sound science, but those sound and long tried principles which are the safeguard, of pure and undefiled religion. –In this pursuit, it will be my pleasure to render him every assistance compatible with my other duties.

OPENING OF SCHOOL POSTPONED.
OPENING OF THE EPISCOPAL SCHOOL – Deferred.

In consequence of the unusual inclemency of the past winter, the progress of the building designed to serve as a Dormitory for pupils in this Institution, has been retarded much beyond the expectations of the Executive Committee, under whose direction it was commenced in December last. And as the material of the structure is stone, the process of working in which is necessarily slow and greatly dependent on the weather, there is now no hope of its completion by the time heretofore specified for commencing the School.

This circumstance, together with the difficulty likely to be experienced in procuring in time from the North certain articles of furniture indispensable to the establishment, and the recently expressed opinion of the Rector, that, without the accommodations to be afforded by the new building, he would be unable to carry into successful operation the system adopted, has constrained the committed, however, reluctantly, to postpone for a few weeks, the time for opening the School.

The public, therefore, are respectfully informed, that the EPISCOPAL SCHOOL, will be opened, (not on the first of April, as before advertised, but) on Monday, the 2nd day of June next; at which time it may be confidently relied on that everything will be in readiness.

Hereafter the academic year will be divided into two equal sessions, and the charge for each be equal. The Episcopal School of North Carolina, was opened on Monday last, in the spacious stone building just erected for the purpose, under the most flattering auspices. It is situated in a delightful grove, about half a mile west of the capitol, on decidedly one of the most desirable and commanding sites anywhere to be found in the environs of the city; and the advantages it possesses, the healthfulness of its locality, and the high reputation of the gentlemen entrusted with its management, will no doubt ensure for it a very extensive patronage.

REGULATIONS ABOUT DEBTS OF PUPILS.
NOTICE.

As the Episcopal School of North Carolina is now opened for the reception of pupils, the School Committee beg leave to call the attention of the public to the following extract from the Prospectus published in January last, viz.

"No student shall be allowed to have an account at any Store, or other place in the City; or to purchase any article (except with his pocket money) without the permission of the Rector. Every Student, previous to his admission into the School, will be required to pay into the hands of the Treasurer, all the funds, of every description, which he may have, and likewise to pay over all other funds, which he may receive during the Session; for which the Treasurer's receipt will be given. Stated allowances for pocket money will be given to each Student, under such regulations as the Rector may prescribe. And it is desired that these allowances may be as small and as nearly alike for all the Students, as practicable. At the end of the Session, an account will be rendered to the Parent or Guardian of each Student; stating the amount of money paid to the Treasurer by the Student – the allowance made to him for pocket money – the amount of his expenses at the School during the Session, and the sum, if any, refunded to him at the close of the Session. Any evasion on the part of a student, in complying with the true spirit and meaning of this regulation, will be particularly noticed, even to his dismission, if necessary, from the School."

To secure a strict observance of the above provision, the committee have resolved that no account of any description made with a student belonging to the Episcopal School, either in Term time or during vacation, without a written order from the Rector, shall be paid, and that in case the parent or guardian of any student shall pay such account, the student shall be immediately dismissed from the School.

PRESENT CONDITION AND COURSE OF STUDY, NOVEMBER, 1834.
EPISCOPAL SCHOOL OF NORTH CAROLINA.

The Committee of the Episcopal School of North Carolina, deeming it their duty, at the first session of the School to submit to the friends of the Institution and the public, a view of its present state, beg leave, as the best and most impartial mode of doing it, to invite attention to the subjoined report of a Committee of gentlemen appointed to conduct the first examination of the pupils, and also to the following additional facts.

Previously to the commencement of another session, the accommodations for the reception of pupils, and the means of instruction generally, will have been much extended. A building precisely similar to the one already occupied, will have been completed, an additional Instructor employed, and a small set of instruments for better illustrating the sciences procured.

In addition, it is proper to taste, that the Committee are clearly of the opinion that the system of education, so well begun, cannot be fully carried into effect without still father accommodations. They have resolved, therefore, to take immediate steps, should the liberality of Episcopalians warrant it, (which they do not allow themselves to doubt) for the erection of a third building, of much larger dimensions, which is to form a center to the two already erected, and thus complete the original plan.

To enable them to effect this necessary object, the Committee have appointed agents to solicit contributions from the friends of the Church and of the School, who are expected to enter immediately upon their duty; and it is confidently believed that the claims of the Institution to the bounty and patronage of the friends of Literature and Religion need be enforced by no other plea than is contained in the report of the Committee of Examination, which follows.
By order of the Committee, L. S. IVES, Chairman.
Raleigh, Nov. 28, 1834.

REPORT OF THE EXAMINING COMMITTEE.

The undersigned, having been required by the School Committee to attend the first examination of the pupils in the Episcopal School at this place, and to report on the proficiency of the students and on such other matters as they may deem proper, connected with the conduct of the school and the ability and faithfulness of the teachers, have, in pursuance of this request, attended the examination which commenced on the morning of Saturday, the 22nd day of November, and continued, with the intermission of Sunday, until the evening of the next Tuesday; and take pleasure in making the following Report:

The number of pupils in the school is sixty-seven, who are divided into classes in the several departments of Instruction. These departments are six, and consist of,

1st. Religious Instruction, comprising six classes in the Bible, Catechism and Ethics, and including all the pupils, except three small boys, who are in the first lessons in reading.
2d. The English Language, comprising three classes in Orthography and Reading, and four in Grammar and Rhetoric.
3d. Ancient Languages, consisting of four classes in Greek, and give in Latin.
4th. Modern Languages, consisting of three classes in French, one in Spanish, and one in Italian.
5th. Mathematics – two classes in Algebra, and one in Arithmetic.
6th. Geography and History – one class in Geography, and one in History.

In the department of Religious Instruction, two classes were examined in the New Testament; one as far as Luke, the other as far as Mark, and a third class in the Catechism of the Episcopal Church. The examination of these classes was conducted by Bishop IVES, and was highly satisfactory, evincing that the pupils not only retained in their memory the text they had read, and the facts recorded by the evangelists, but that they had also been diligently instructed in the principles and duties of the Christian faith. It is understood that religious instruction is given to all these classes on every Sunday morning, again to the Bible Classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning; and to the Catechism classes on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning. All are required to attend divine worship in the Episcopal Church twice on Sunday.

2. In the department of English Education, there was no examination, for the want of time. We understand that each pupil, whatever other studies he may be pursuing, is required to read and spell once a day; and that to those who are far enough advanced, exercises in composition are assigned. The course of instruction in this department, a synopsis of which has been shown to us, leaves no room to doubt that a thorough knowledge of the English language, in its etymology, grammatical construction and graces of style, forms one of the most prominent objects to which the attention of the pupil is directed.

3d. Department of Ancient Languages. In Greek, classes were examined in Homer, Xenophon's Anabasis, the Greek Reader and Grammar; in Latin, in the Odes of Horace, and the first two Books of Livy, Cicero's Orations against Cataline, Virgil's Bucolics, and a small part of Sallust, Caesar's Commentaries and the Latin Reader. The examination in these branches was very strict, and the result highly honorable to the Teachers and the Pupils. The system of instruction is calculated to convey the most full, accurate and critical knowledge of the ancient Classics. The proficiency of the pupils in some of the higher classes, produced surprise in those of us who, in our early years, had been accustomed to the mode then generally adopted in this State, of teaching the dead languages. Not only were the translations made with facility, and all the general rules of grammatical construction promptly rendered, but the multiplied exceptions to these rules, even in the minutest particulars, and the peculiar idioms of the language and of each author, according to the degree of advancement in the pupil, seemed to have been most carefully inculcated. In the Poets, and especially in the Odes of Horace, subject as they are to such a variety and complexity of metre, the higher classes displayed an extraordinary familiarity with the rules of Prosody. Even in the classes which were just commencing to read, it was remarkable how well they understood, and with what readiness they would apply, the appropriate rule of construction.

4. Department of Modern Languages. Classes were examined in French, Spanish and Italian. To the classes in French most of the remarks just made, in relation to the classes in the ancient languages, will apply, with this addition, that their correctness in pronunciation was much superior to what is usually attained in so short a period, a large proportion of the students having commenced the study within four or five months, and having had their attention at the same time directed to other studies. The classes in Spanish and Italian commenced late in the session, and, as none of us had a critical knowledge of these languages, we could only judge of their proficiency by the promptness with which they answered the questions of their Instructer [sic].

5. Mathematics. The class in Algebra commenced in August, consisting of those who had gone through a full course of Arithmetic. It was examined on Addition, Subtraction, Multiplication, and Division, both of Integral and Fractional Algebraic Quantities, Square and Cube Roots, Fractional Indices, Simple and Quadratic Equations, and method of finding the greatest common Divisior [sic]. In Arithmetic, classes were examined in Vulgar and Decimal Fractions, and in the simple rules. These classes are not less entitled to commendation for their proficiency than those on which we have already offered observations; and here it may be as well to make the general remark, that not only in these mathematical studies, to which the principle would more emphatically apply, but in all the branches of science and learning taught in this school, it seems to have been the aim (and, we should say, the successful aim) of the Instructers [sic] to make each student master of the ground on which he stands before he advances another step. Under this system of instruction, the progress may seem to be slow, while it is, in fact, greatly accelerated; and it is only under this system that solid and permanent acquisitions of knowledge can be made.

6th Department – Geography and History. In both thee branches, the examination was equally satisfactory. In Geography, questions were asked rapidly, passing from one section of the Globe to the other; and the prompt answers evinced that the knowledge had not been acquired by rote from books, but that each pupil had been required to spread the map before his mind, and retain in his memory the relative geographical positions of the different portions of our earth. In the study of History, the judicious plan has been adopted, of commencing at a period near that of our own times. The transactions of such a period are obviously of more interest to us than those of antiquity; and our curiosity naturally leads us to trace back the history of nations in which we have begun to be interested, to their remote origin.

We have thus concluded our account of the different branches in which the pupils have been examined. It is proper to mention that the Examination, except in two or three instances, was conducted entirely by persons unconnected with the school. We were told how far each class had advanced in its assigned study, and questions were propounded, within that limit, by many of the gentlemen present. It is also worthy of notice that no preparation had been made for this scrutiny, as is usual in most other schools, by reviewing.

We have made no discrimination among the members of the several classes, because we understand it to be an established rule in this Institution that no distinctive rewards or marks of merit are to be publicly awarded. We are pleased to find that in the absence of these distinctions, usually awarded, there have not been lacking on the part of the students the most worthy motives to exertion—the desire of improvement, the anxiety to secure the good opinion of their instructers [sic], and of the wise and good among their friends and acquaintances, and the approving voice of their own consciences.

We cannot take leave of this part of the subject without remarking that everything we saw and hard tended to convince us, that the time of the student had been well employed, and that the services of the instructers [sic] had been able, faithful and untiring. Mr. COGSWELL, the Principal, has fully sustained the high reputation he brought here, (and that is an eulogy neither lightly given nor lightly merited;) and he has been ably and zealously seconded by his assistants, the Rev. Mr. SAUNDERS & Mr. HOOPER, on whose capacity and leaning, and assiduity, full reliance may be placed.

As regards the government and moral discipline of the school, it appears to us, from all the inquiries we have made, to be, as the prospectus announced it should be, “of the paternal kind.” The cheerful and animated looks of the students, their easy but respectful intercourse with their Principal, would have assured us of this fact even if some of us had not known the universal sentiment of affection they entertain towards that amiable and talented man. It has also been very gratifying to us to learn that, so far as is known to the Principal or to the School Committee, but one or two instances have occurred of a violation of the rule which requires all the money of the pupils to be deposited with the Principal and disbursed by him; and that the students have cheerfully acquiesced in the disposition he has made, consulting economy on the one hand, and on the other, not debarring them from occasional innocent expenditures. It is believed, too, that no account have been contracted in the stores, in disregard of the rules of the institution.

It is highly gratifying to us to be able to state that no cases of serious sickness, and very few of slight temporary indisposition, have occurred during the past session, although the students have come from different parts of this State, from New York, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Louisiana, and have remained here, many of them in a new stone edifice, during all the summer and autumnal months.

Finally, we congratulate you upon having established a School, which we believe with such teachers as you now have will be preeminent among the Institutions of our country. If our praise has seemed to be indiscriminate, it is because we found nothing to censure in instruction or discipline. We trust it will receive that nurture from the public which, it so well merits, without which it cannot live, and with which, we doubt not, it will produce the most valuable fruits.
In behalf of the Examining Committee.

NUMBER OF PUPILS, 1835.

The Episcopal School. * * * We are happy to say, that the Second Session of this Institution has commenced under the most flattering prospects; there being now 87 Pupils and the number daily increasing. We have the pleasure to add, that the fears which have been entertained that the present Rector, Mr. COGSWELL, would resign his charge and accept the Professorship offered him in the South-Carolina College, at Columbia, are without foundation. This gentleman, we are authorized to say, has declined that appointment, and feels entirely identified with the Institution over which he now presides, of which he is in a great measure the Parent, and which we hope and believe, he will make one of the most useful in this country.

–Raleigh Register, January 27, 1835.

MR. COGSWELL WILL REMAIN.

Raleigh Episcopal School. It was through inadvertence that we omitted to state in our last, on authority of the other city papers, that Mr. COGSWELL, Rector of the Episcopal School near this city, had declined the Professorship of Ancient Languages in the South-Carolina College at Columbia, his appointment to which we some weeks since announced; and from the same cause, an article from a Columbia paper, stating that Mr. COGSWELL had "definitely accepted the chair," found its way into our columns.

We are now authorized and requested to say, that Mr. C. has declined the Professorship in question; having determined to remain at the head of the flourishing Institution over which he now presides with so much credit to himself and usefulness to the community. This School, now in its second session, numbers about ninety pupils.

HISTORICAL SKETCH – BARRINGER FAMILY

Transcribed by Hope Blackford

John Paul Barringer, Daniel L. Barringer, Paul Barringer, and Daniel Moreau Barringer[3]

John Paul BARRINGER was born in Hanover, in Germany, on the 4th of June, 1721. He emigrated to this country, and settled first in Pennsylvania. He removed to this State before the Revolution. During our struggles, he sided with the friends of liberty. From his devotion to the cause, he was taken prisoner, with others, by the Tories, and carried to Camden, South Carolina. He was, for a long time, kept in confinement, and was the only one who returned home. He died in Cabarrus, January 1st, 1807.

His son, Gen. Daniel L. BARRINGER, now of Tennessee, lived for a long time in Wake County, where he married Miss WHITE, grand-daughter of Governor CASWELL. He represented Wake County in 1813, and from 1819 to 1822, in the House of Commons. He was elected a member of Congress, and served from 1826 to 1835. He removed to Tennessee, where he has been Speaker of the House of Representatives, in that State, where he now resides.

Another son, Gen. Paul BARRINGER, resided in Cabarrus. He was born in September, 1778. He had as good an education as the county afforded. He was fond of reading, and distinguished for his practical sense. He married Elizabeth BRANDON, daughter of Matthew BRANDON, of Rowan, a soldier of the Revolution, whose family were distinguished for the love of liberty. She died in 1848. He entered public life in 1806, as a member of the House of Commons, and was often afterwards a member of both branches of the Legislature. He died at an advanced age, at Lincolnton, in June, 1844. He left a family of nine children, of whom Daniel Moreau BARRINGER, now our Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Madrid, in Spain, was eldest. He was born in July, 1806. He was educated at our University; graduated in 1826; studied law with Chief Justice Ruffin; elected to the House of Commons in 1829, and served for several years; member of the Convention in 1835; elected to Congress in 1843, served continuously until 1849, when he was appointed by Gen. Z. TAYLOR, President of the United States, Envoy to Spain, where he now resides.

2 April, 1865. …I wish it was so that I could meet some of those of the Forty-seventh who were at the final scene when General LEE surrendered, but I have met only two, Lieutenant J. Willie JONES, of Company I, and Corporal Rufus SANDERS of Company C, who are now living in Wake county. After 2 April the Forty-seventh had very few men but its organization was kept up till General LEE surrendered. On the 2d the Forty-seventh was bringing up the rear of General LEE's shattered heroes and here it was that with the larger portion of the remaining members of the Forty-seventh I was captured. I had orders when placed in charge of the skirmishers of the Forty-seventh Regiment on that day to hold our position at all hazards. The enemy was never able to break through my skirmish line, but it was completely surrounded and we were captured by the enemy coming from our rear. Gaston H. MOONEYHAM, a private of Company E, Forty-seventh Regiment, who is now living in Barton's Creek Township, this county, was with me when I was captured and stood manfully by me in this fight, the last fight we made for the Confederacy.

Dr. Ivey G. RIDDICK
(Read by T. M. JORDAN)

Dr. RIDDICK died at his home in Raleigh, January 1st, 1920. He was the son of Wiley RIDDICK, his mother being Miss Annie JONES. His father was a farmer; therefore, Dr. RIDDICK was reared on the farm. He married Miss Annie DUNN, and of that union there were three children. Dr. RIDDICK was a brother of President W. C. RIDDICK of the North Carolina State College of A. & E. He attended school at Wake Forest College and graduated in the class of 1884. He took his medical course at Bellevue Hospital, New York, and graduated in 1886, obtaining license from the State Examining Board in the same year.

After graduating, Dr. RIDDICK located for the practice of his profession at Wake Forest, remaining here only two years, then going to the near-by town of Youngsville, Franklin County, where he had a large practice for over twenty years. In 1899 he represented his county in the State Legislature. He gave up his practice at Youngsville to accept a position at the State Penitentiary under Governor KITCHEN's administration. This necessitated his moving to Raleigh, where he continued the practice of his profession until called to join his daughter, Miss Eliza RIDDICK, who nursed influenza patients in 1918, contracting the disease herself, from which she died.

Information supplied by Dr. W. C. HORTON, of Raleigh, N. C.
