WAKE COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, INC. (WCGS)

WCGS was organized in April 1982 to promote genealogical study and research, to serve as a medium of exchange of genealogical or historical information, to encourage the preservation of genealogical or historical records, to provide cultural, educational, and social opportunities involving genealogy. In 1983 WCGS was incorporated as a non-profit organization under the laws of the State of North Carolina.

Membership is open to anyone with an interest in the purposes of WCGS as stated above. The membership year is from September 1 through August 31. Annual dues are $25 for individuals and institutions and $30 for families (two people, related by blood or marriage, residing at the same address). A membership form is available on our website. Membership dues received after May 31 will apply to the following membership year.

Message From the Editor

By Diane L Richard

Editor, Wake Treasures

WELCOME TO THIS EDITION OF WAKE TREASURES

Dear Readers,

This issue incorporates material covering over 150 years of Wake County History and includes some personal family narratives as provided by Carla Stancil and Phil Upchurch who are joined by a new contributor Cheryl Williams who is connected to Friends of Oberlin Village. Please do share your personal stories of people, places and events connected to Wake County. Each story is so personal and unique and I know that I love reading them as they each help me visualize a Wake County that I never personally knew.

We continue to investigate tax records, legislative petitions and births. We also explore some different kinds of records, new to the journal. The records of Meadowbrook Country Club (Garner, NC) reflect an organization established in the 1950s when segregation was still prevalent in North Carolina and African Americans sought to engage in the same leisure activities as everyone else.

On a more practical side, we get a taste of a Raleigh grocery store and its customers as we explore a mid-1880s ledger. Grocery stores were the type of business that many of our ancestors would have visited. It's the type of business records we need to seek out if we want to really learn something about how our ancestors and the others in their community really lived in terms of practical day-to-day type activities.

Documenting the many facets of our ancestors lives is a priceless legacy we leave for future generations.

Diane

Meadowbrook Country Club was founded in Garner, North Carolina in 1958 by a group of African Americans who were denied entry to the existing country clubs in the area. Meadowbrook became a social center in the 1960s and 1970s and included a nine-hole golf course, junior olympic sized swimming pool, putt putt course, pro shop, and clubhouse. In 2007 St. Augustine's University purchased the struggling country club and has been bringing new life to the country club. Due to the strong ethnic heritage of Meadowbrook, it was included in the National Register of Historic Places in 2009. Meadowbrook remains open to the public today.

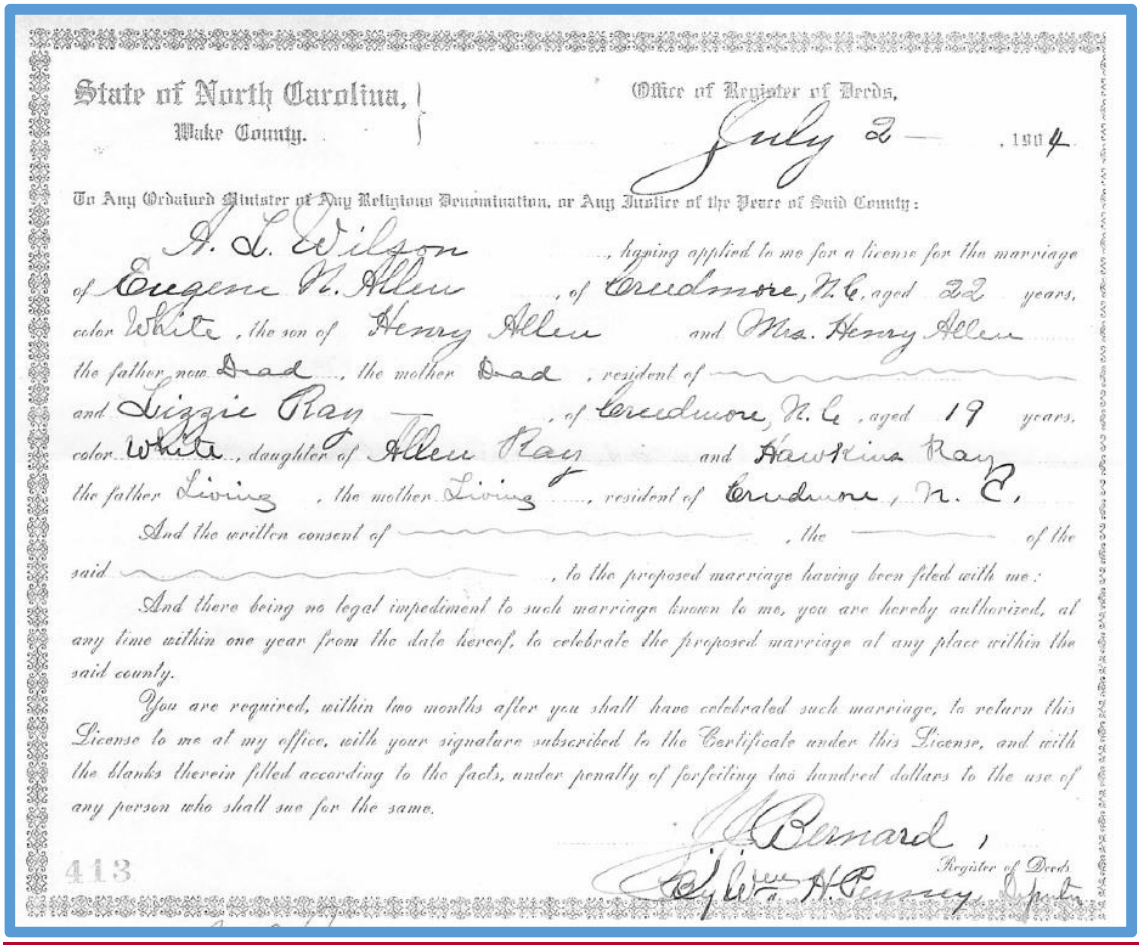
Eugene Narron Allen

Carla Stancil[5]

[Editor's note: The author has extensive and deep Wake County roots. Starting with this article, she will periodically share stories about her family and their lives.]

Eugene Narron "Bud" Allen, my great grandfather, has always been an enigma to me, but I imagine him as a tall lanky man with jet black hair, eyes of steel, a gun on one hip and a knife on the other. From all accounts, he was a rough fellow from a dirt-poor family and had the criminal record to prove it.

Bud was born 03 May 1880 in the New Light area of northern Wake County. He was the 4th child of parents Henry J Allen and wife Armeda "Mezie" Huskey, who have proven to be as much of a mystery as their son.[6] On 04 July 1904, Bud married Elizabeth "Lizzy/Sissy" Ray in Wake County, NC, in the home of A.L. Wilson in New Light.[7]



State of North Carolina, Wake County.

Office of Register of Deeds, July 2 — 1904

To Any Ordained Minister of Any Religious Denomination, or Any Justice of the Peace of Said County:

A. L. Wilson, having applied to me for a license for the marriage of Eugene N. Allen, of Creedmore, N.C. aged 22 years, color White, the son of Henry Allen and Mrs. Henry Allen the father now Dead, the mother Dead, resident of ——— and Lizzie Ray, of Creedmore N. C. aged 19 years, color White, daughter of Allen Ray and Hawkins Ray the father Living, the mother Living, resident of Creedmore, N. C.

And the written consent of ———, the ——— of the said ———, to the proposed marriage having been filed with me:

And there being no legal impediment to such marriage known to me, you are hereby authorized, at any time within one year from the date hereof, to celebrate the proposed marriage at any place within the said county.

You are required, within two months after you shall have celebrated such marriage, to return this License to me at my office, with your signature subscribed to the Certificate under this License, and with the blanks therein filled according to the facts, under penalty of forfeiting two hundred dollars to the use of any person who shall sue for the same.

New Light is Wake County's northern most township and sits just above Falls Lake. Many of my Allen and Ray family members are from New Light, an area long known for its moonshiners. The area has a mysterious nature and the natives of the period nurtured that attitude. They did not like outsiders and especially did not like "revenuers" as moonshine was a powerful economic force that stood between them and starvation.

New Light was named for the rebellious Baptist/Moravian "common man" Christian who migrated to the area in the mid-1700s.[8] Rebellious is key here. Author and clergyman Charles Woodmason even called them the "New Light Infestations" and rebuked them for "spitting tobacco, leaving the service during prayer, whispering during the sermon, and not controlling unruly children".[9] New Light Township took its name from this religious group and has a creek in the area by the same name which empties into Falls Lake.[10] The area was also known as "the Harricanes", a place where the only crops to survive were rocks and moonshine.[11]

Bud was a family man who raised eight children, but his alter ego was definitely a bad boy. Bud supplemented his farm laborer salary by moonshining as a… well… moonshiner. Family lore has it that Bud produced some of the best "white lightening" around. He even employed family members to assist – his nephews, brothers-in-law, cousins, and his son Atlas. Atlas Allen was my grandfather and served as Bud's able assistant in the family business. My mother, Gladys Allen, managed "transportation" of the goods from the time she was big enough to sit on a Coca Cola crate to see over the steering wheel of a Buick.

Bud's luck ran out in the spring of 1927 when he was arrested and charged with manufacturing whiskey.[12] He was indicted by a Wake County Grand Jury at the April Term 1927 for Illicit Distilling. A True Bill was returned on 13 April 1927 and Bud pled guilty the same day. Prayer for Judgment was continued until the May Term 1927 with a bond of $300.00.[13] On 9 May 1927, Bud was sentenced "to be imprisoned in the common jail of Wake County for the term of six months to be assigned to work on the roads of Wake County". He was given until 1 November 1927 to appear at the Sherriff's office to commence serving his sentence. About a month later on 9 December 1927, Bud was denied parole by North Carolina governor Angus Wilton McLean.[14]

Bud and Sissy must have had quite the farewell before he departed for six months on the road crew; their last child Marvin was born 18 April 1928, just about the time he

A Wake County Native Reflects

Robert Phillip "Phil" Upchurch[17]

Thoughts About Yates Mill

My father, Robert Jefferson Upchurch, and I were born in the shadows of the Yates Mill – he in 1880 and I in 1928. This happened because my grandfather, Bartley Jefferson Upchurch, in 1869 bought a 360-acre tract adjacent to the Yates Mill on the north. The Upchurch tract was given the name "Woodland" and during the 1880 – 1910 time period it became a Wake County showplace farm.

I lived in the Yates Mill community until I was 17 and absorbed much about the history and lore of the Mill. The Mill was built in the 1750s by Samuel Pearson but soon fell into the hands of Phares Yates, hence the name Yates Mill. Phares had a son Robert E. Lee Yates who inherited the Mill and later became a mathematics professor at N.C. State College (now University). R.E.L. Yates passed the Mill on to his son Wilbur Yates who lived in Raleigh but ran the Yates property with direct responsibility for the Yates dairy interests. Wilbur preferred to circulate in higher society but the labor shortages of World War II forced him to drive one of the two new dairy trucks that the War Production Board allowed the Dairy to purchase. Wilbur would occasionally give me a ride as I hitchhiked to and from Raleigh.

The Phares Yates house still stands on Lake Wheeler Road a hundred yards or so south of the Mill. A splendid monument marks Phares' grave in the local Inwood Baptist Church Cemetery. I have a treasured 1895 newspaper clipping that shows my 25 years old Aunt Lena Upchurch attended a Ballentine wedding in the Yates' home.

John Daniel Lea Sr. was the miller at Yates Mill farm from the late 1800s until well after the mid-1900s. He and his family lived in a house supplied by the Mill. It was across Lake Wheeler Road from the Mill and perhaps 50 yards north. Mr. Lea charged a fee for boats and fishing on the pond. My Uncle Wis Upchurch periodically set trap lines in the pond to catch turtles. For bait he used frogs for which he paid me five cents each.

The youngest child of Mr. Lea was J.D. Lea Jr. He and I were about the same age and were buddies. During my one year at Cary High School (1943 – 44), John Jr. and I were elected to serve on the Student Council. Our term of office was set to begin in the fall of 1944, but unfortunately, I became a high school dropout and did not return to fulfill my duties. Later I learned that John Jr. owned a landlocked tract on Mid Pines Road. In more recent years, it was my pleasure to interview Mary (Lea) Simpkins, the sister of John Jr.

Figure 7, [editor provided] This image shows "Cows grazing on College Dairy Farm." Even now, North Carolina State University has dairy farms that abut Yates Mill. [source: North Carolina State University, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Department of of Communication Services Records (UA100.099), Special Collections Research Center at NCSU Libraries, https://d.lib.ncsu.edu/collections/catalog/ua100_099-002-cb0002_008-4256-001#?c=0&m=0&s=0&cv=0&z=-542.3601%2C0%2C5324.7201%2C3018]

For many decades Yates Mill Pond was favorite place to baptize converts to the Christian faith. I have been fortunate to attend one of these baptisms. Unfortunately, tragedy has also been associated with the Mill as there have been a number of drownings in the pond.

Much more needs to be collected and learned about Yates Mill. I once saw a reference that corn was brought to the Mill in canoes to be processed. One look at the small size of the stream would lead one to surmise that this reference is not valid. The history of the Mill, in regards to the grinding of corn and wheat, is well established. Another story suggests that the Mill functioned as a saw mill too. This seems logical, but good proof seems to be lacking.

The history of Yates Mill included a period of ownership by A.E. Finley and Associates. This led to N.C. State University acquiring the Mill and nearby properties to establish the Lake Wheeler Road Field Laboratory. NCSU has also arranged for the Mill area to function as a Wake County Park. A separate entity, Yates Mill Associates, cares for the mill and makes it available for use by the public. The mill is a great place to visit.

In recent years it has been my pleasure to stroll the wooded pathways maintained by the Yates Mill County Park. The area is reverting back to the original wilderness that existed in colonial days. It is a peaceful experience and highly recommended. For the plant enthusiast, it is well to note that south bank of Steep Hill Creek includes a microclimate that sustains a unique vegetation community. This fact was unknown to me as I grew up, but now is well documented and available to explore.

My early years in Rhamkatte gave me a sense of place as it did my kin and neighbors. Yates Mill was an iconic part of the environment. This community remained the touchstone of my youth and one to which my memory and mind's eye returned as the decades rolled by. So must it be for many today.

Raleigh Grocery Ledger (1884-1886)

Transcribed by Ginger Mann

[Editor's Note: The collection is a ledger of an unidentified grocery store in Raleigh, N.C. It gives us a fascinating glimpse into life in the 1880s in terms of who was purchasing from this grocery store – both individuals and businesses – and the types of goods being purchased. The complete index for the ledger is given and then followed by select examples from the ledger. Grocery stores are the type of business that almost every family would have had contact with; this makes ledgers like this invaluable. The timing of this ledger also makes it valuable since we do not have an extant 1890 census and this helps identify Raleigh residents in the mid-1880s. You might also consult a piece about Branson's North Carolina Business Directory, 1884, Wake Treasures, Vol 20 #2]

Playing Among the Tombs

Cheryl Williams[19]

[Editor's Note: Cheryl Williams is the Vice Chair of the Friends of Oberlin Village Committee and a guest columnist of Wake Treasures. Please enjoy her recollections.]*

Nana shoos us out the house. 'Go outside and play' she says. Giggling friends run down to the graveyard to play hide and seek. We wonder about the people who are buried here. Who are they? Where did they live? What did they do? What were their lives like?

We'd hide among the tombstones; scary but fun times. Boy Scouts go to the cemetery at night to get their bravery badge. Church groups gather to water, prune and weed the graves. Picnic lunches washed down with lemonade and iced tea after the work is done. My sister and I waited at the edge of the cemetery for Papa to come home from work every afternoon; anxiously looking for him down the trodden path. I remember playing the games of the day like hopscotch, marbles, 123 red light, jacks and tag.

Little did we know then that this was a remnant of a thriving African American settlement that was established after the Civil War. We have found recently that even before the war there were free blacks that populated the area. The community was comprised of hard working, educated, spiritual and healthy people. They were highly skilled artisans, brick masons, carpenters, seamstresses, teachers, entrepreneurs, ministers and landowners; hard working people who cared for their families, their community, their freedom and God. There were two churches in the area, one Methodist and one Baptist. Family members were encouraged to worship God and to have faith that life would get better. Some families would go to Wilson Temple and some would attend Oberlin Baptist. As a child I thought it was strange that with in families there was a [19] Cheryl C. Williams, Vice Chair, Friends of Oberlin Village (FOV), https://friendsofoberlinvillage.org/, whose "goal is to create a robust repository of information about the development of Oberlin Village, an African American reconstruction settlement established in 1866, and its outstanding citizens. Despite their suffering from slavery, segregation, discrimination and gentrification, the residents of Oberlin Village established a strong community bond and always exhibited pride, purpose and prosperity."

freedom to choose what church you attend. Today I know we find God where we are and He touches us in different ways. Folk were free to choose which house of God they would worship. The church was also the center of social activities. Many celebrations were held at one church or the other. Sunrise, New Years services, and Vacation Bible School were often held together. That ecumenical tradition still thrives today.

Oberlin Villagers built a wooden one room school house in 1882 so that the 100 students would have a suitable place to continue their education. The school, named Oberlin School was located across the street from the church on the spot where the Interact building is located today. Oberlin School was absorbed by the Wake County school system in 1884 and a new three room school was built to accommodate the growing student population.

Classes were taught four months out of the year. After the new school was built the one room wooden structure was moved to the back and used for vocational training for boys and home economics for girls. All the girls were taught cooking and sewing after the fifth grade. Students participated in recitals, skits, stage programs, and operettas. It was a tradition to have student pictures taken in the third and eighth grades. Oberlin Elementary School, a two story brick building, was constructed in 1916 and replaced the wooden structure. The school closed during the 1966-67 school year with fifty-three pupils in attendance. Education was the tool to lift the villagers to higher economic levels.

The dead were interred in the Historic Oberlin Cemetery behind the local school. The bodies were buried so that they could 'see' the rising sun. Families had plots that held 6-8 people. The tombstones were wooden or simple fieldstones. Later as the community began to prosper cement and granite tombstones inscribed with flowers or Bible verses were erected. Folk were not comfortable showing what they had in life so the tombstones often honored their accomplishments in death. This cemetery, which holds the cultural material of a time passed, is located on Oberlin Rd in Raleigh. There is a marker to remind us that "In the late 1860's freed slaves founded Oberlin, the largest Reconstruction-era black settlement in Wake County. By 1880 some 160 families lived in Oberlin Village; named in tribute to the Ohio College that supported education for Negroes. They established Wilson Temple United Methodist Church in the late 1860's, Oberlin School about 1873, Oberlin Baptist Church about 1880 and Latta University about 1892. They buried their loved ones at Oberlin Cemetery (est. 1873)."

Friends of Oberlin Village was established in 2011. Our mission is to preserve, honor and educate folk on the material culture of the historic era. The group holds periodic cemetery clean up days partnering with local landscape companies and community volunteers. They hold an annual community BBQ fundraiser to raise awareness of the challenges facing Oberlin Village. NC State and William Peace University, along with other universities have assisted FOV in research to aid in gaining National Historic Landmark status. Friends of Oberlin Village meet every 4th Monday, except in December, at 6:00pm at Wilson Temple UMC 1023 Oberlin Rd Raleigh NC 27605.
