Message From the Editor

By Diane L Richard, Editor, Wake Treasures

With this edition we are excited to continue some ongoing series (Wake County Wardens of the Poor, Voter Registrations, and more) while we also start a new series – Wake County Court Minutes Pleas & Quarter Sessions (starting with 1816).

This edition also includes a Register of Practicing Physicians, Surgeons, Embalmers, and Midwives in the City of Raleigh which is the front piece for a series we will start in the next edition of the journal – City of Raleigh Birth Records (commencing 1890).

When it comes to documentation, being poor was not necessarily a bad thing as any relief received was documented as with Relief Payments for Families of Confederate Soldiers (1861-1865).

We continue to explore the volumes created by Dr. Ernest Burke Haywood, a practicing physician in Raleigh. Though the entries are brief – they really give you a sense of medical care in Raleigh in the year 1854.

We are almost finished with Bastardy Bonds as the current installment (1923-1929) will only be followed by one more (1930-1939). These early 20th century bastardy actions are more involved than the 18th century ones we saw as this series started. Do recognize that these are publicly-available records; unlike adoption records (which are sealed regardless of when created); bastardy records, even into the 20th century, can be accessed by anyone. When this series is completed, a published volume will be created.

With the next edition, besides starting a series on Births, we will also resume one on Deaths as reported for the City of Raleigh. Previous editions of the journal transcribed Death records from July 1887 through April 1896. With birth and death records not required in North Carolina until 1913, these are invaluable records. We will also continue the series on Tax Lists, Court Minutes, Voter Registration, etc.

The journal is always seeking records and volunteers! Without the contributions from Debbie Blake, Stephen Terry, Cynthia Gage, Lisa Lisson, Carey Faison, Helen Cleereman, Cyndia Deal, and Hope Blackford, you would not have this edition of Wake Treasures to read!

I think you will agree that they have done a wonderful job of providing a rich and varied collection of resources to those researching Wake County ancestors.

Kudos, as always, to Hope Blackford! Her tireless effort to bring you this journal is unparalleled! Whether she's transcribing new material, formatting material given her, or compiling the journal, she is giving of her time to bring this award-winning publication to you.

As always, wishing you success where-ever your genealogical journey takes you.

Sincerely,

Diane

Treasurers' and Comptrollers' Papers: County Settlements with the State

By Debbie Blake, Collection Services Section Manager,
Division of Archives and Records

In the Search Room of the State Archives of North Carolina, there are finding aids for all of the collections. There are no hidden or unknown collections, genealogists' folklore notwithstanding. Many of the collections, however, are largely unknown to most genealogists. It is illuminating to read finding aids to see what a collection contains and sometimes even more illuminating to read secondary articles to see what primary documents the authors used for their research. Any articles or histories of specific families and/or subjects and places should cite the documents that they used. This is always the best way to find "hidden" jewels in any archives.

In the record group Treasurers' and Comptrollers' Papers, which has a very thorough finding aid, there is a series called "County Settlements with the State, 1733-1938." Like many of the series in this record group, this one is large, with over 170 boxes and volumes. The series is a miscellany of material that may or may not contain references to individuals of interest to you. It is well worth the general researcher's time to look, however, if for no other reason than to say it has been checked and was not helpful. For researchers working in burned counties, however, this collection contains information that may be available in no other place and should certainly be checked.

County settlements with the state is a series that is all about the money. If you've ever watched or read mysteries or police procedurals, the investigator always follows the money—so does the state. The state wants the money owed it; and these very varied papers are evidence of that. Sub-series are: tax lists; settlements with individuals; county settlements; reports of inheritance taxes; comptroller's notice to auctioneers of taxes due; auctioneers tax returns; election expenses; attendance certificates and salaries for judges, solicitors and the attorney general; county coroners; and volumes. This last contains more than 20 volumes of miscellaneous materials. The finding aid clearly delineates the material and its arrangement, with most arranged chronologically within the subseries.

A very small subseries, entitled "Settlements of Individuals" is arranged alphabetically by an individual's name. These are individuals paying taxes, exempted from paying taxes, or objects of charity. There are only 2 boxes in this subseries. Many of the papers in the folders are tiny slips stating that someone is exempt from paying taxes, most often for being old and/or infirm. Some give no county.

The bulk of the collection, 86 boxes to be exact, is the subseries called "County Settlements" and, as with most things related to Treasurers' and Comptrollers' Papers, is a miscellany of materials. An aspect of the subseries involves the paying and collecting of fees related to various duties of officials. This might involve land transactions, lawsuits, taxes, and marriages. Most of our ancestors were involved in some, if not all, of those activities. Researchers looking for criminals or those accused of criminal activity will find a nice little section here that includes payments to officials involved in apprehending, trying, and punishing criminals. For the most part, the name of the accused is included in the papers. Many of the papers in this large subseries are forms filled out by the sheriff or other official of the total amount of money they were paying, but many are more specific and include lists of people. More than a few of them have the ubiquitous hole punched into them to indicate that the money was paid. As with the Revolutionary pay vouchers, the hole often obscures the name of the recipient.

Another small subseries of interest is the "Reports of Inheritance Taxes." Unfortunately, they only cover the period 1906-1919, and the early period is very spotty. For most of the earliest years there is only one county's form for the entire year, but later ones are more complete. The papers in the subseries range from preprinted forms in which the decedent's name is listed along with the value of the estate and the taxes, who paid them, and their relationship to the decedent, to letters stating essentially the same information.

Copyright© 2015, All Rights Reserved – Wake County Genealogical Society, Inc.

The next three subseries—"Comptroller's Notice to Auctioneers of Taxes Due," "Election Expenses," and "Attendance Certificates and Salaries for Judges, Solicitors, and the Attorney General"—are very specific and of limited use to the general researcher. The last of the boxes contains the subseries "County Coroners- Inquests held and claims for services rendered," which is disappointingly small in volume but large in information. The papers are coroners' reports in which the name of the deceased is almost always provided, and in some cases the names of the jurors convened are there, as well.

The series ends with over twenty volumes that deal primarily with taxes owed to the state by the counties. A look through many of them reveals preprinted forms in which taxables are listed, and the county official noted how much tax was being paid for each category. What is interesting about this is the picture of the county that the forms give the researcher. For certain years, 1851 for example, taxes were to be paid on gold watches, harps, bowling alleys, peddlers, taverns, and negro traders to name just a few items. Many counties struck out entries in which they had no taxes paid and wrote in additional items. Who would have guessed, for example, that Iredell County would have paid $5.00 for a comic singer and Greene County would have paid $50.00 for a circus?

This particular series within the record group, Treasurers' and Comptrollers' Papers, is a very interesting one with the potential to give information that cannot be found elsewhere. For most family researchers it will be worth a look; for those researchers working in burned counties, it will be essential to check here. What is also important about this series is that it reiterates to researchers the need to familiarize themselves with all of the finding media available, whether it is the card index to county records or the individual state agencies. All are available in hard copy in the Search Room, and many are available via MARS. There are scope notes or agency histories for each as well that give the researcher the information about why the record group or series was created.

Wake County Court Minutes Pleas & Quarter Sessions, Volume 1, 1816-1819

By Diane L Richard

[Source: NC Archives, microfilm C.099.30005]

Court Minutes are an invaluable resource to our family history research. The lowest level court, and therefore the one most useful to us, is the "Court of Pleas & Quarter Sessions" which was typically held quarterly (per its name) though not always.

This court handled probate & guardian, registering deeds, apprentice & bastardy activities, road work, jury duty, land to be sold for back taxes, and so very much more!

Before her death, Weynette Parks Haun transcribed Wake County Court Minutes from 1771-1815. We are picking up where she left off! This new and ongoing series on court minutes picks up with February Court 1816.

The first three pages are presented in two formats – one is a complete transcription, and the other is an abstracted version (tabular format). You will then find the rest of the first 11 pages are completely transcribed. For the next 11 pages, we present an abstracted (tabular view).

We have done this so that our readers, and hopefully future volunteers, will receive two perspectives. A full transcription provides you the fuller context for available information. This information is often less than we would like to ideally see (there are loose & bound court paper collections and deed collections that sometimes correlate with items mentioned in the court minutes), and it is more than an abstracted version provides.

On the other hand, doing a full transcription is more time consuming and challenging! With an abstracted tabular view, we are able to more quickly identify the names mentioned and give you a sense of why they are mentioned. With this information, you can then access the original court minutes (as originals or microfilm) to then get the full entry.

Recognizing that it's okay to do abstracts, we hope that more of our readers will step forward to help us bring you more of these invaluable court minutes. As we often say "anything you do is more than what we had before!"

We have provided you with an image of the 1st page of this newest series so that you can see what the court minutes look like in their entirety!

Thanks to Stephen Terry and Cynthia Gage for getting us started on this new series – these records are invaluable, and it's wonderful to now have more of a window into them.

The Harward Family Bible (Wake, Moore, and Lee Counties)

By Lisa Lisson

The Harward Family Bible contains the birth, marriage, and death recordings of the descendants of James Harward, Revolutionary War soldier of Wake County. James Harward's descendants migrated to Moore County (later to become Lee County) between 1830 and 1840. This Bible was begun after 1853 (the copyright date) and believed to have been the Bible of Caswell Sugg Harward and wife Mary Adline Thomas as they began their married life in 1854. The information occurring on dates prior to 1853 is believed to have been derived from the family Bible of George Harward and wife Elizabeth Suggs (Caswell Harward's parents).

In some descendant lines, the Harward surname changed over the years to become Howard. Both Howards and Harwards continue to live in Lee County today.

Dr. Ernest Haywood Notes

By Diane L Richard

In the Volume 23 Issue #1 edition of Wake Treasures, we had a piece on E. Burke Haywood, MD (Raleigh, NC) Notes Patients & Symptoms – 1848-1862.

That series was based on a UNC-CH extensive collection, #01290, Ernest Haywood Collection of Haywood Family Papers, 1752-1967, http://www.lib.unc.edu/mss/inv/h/Haywood,Ernest.html#d1e2304 which includes several volumes, some of which are for Ernest Haywood, some are for E. Burke Haywood, who was a physician in Raleigh, and another by James Newlon (published elsewhere in the same Volume 23 Issue #1 edition of Wake Treasures).

This transcription is for Dr. Ernest Burke Haywood, that same physician, and is labeled V-1290/51: 1854, Physicians account book for visits to patients (formerly volume 33).

We are fortunate that Lisa Lisson has a background in the medical field and has been willing to try and interpret Dr. Haywood's hand-writing. We don't usually think of doctor's hand-writing as being the best; otherwise it wouldn't bear the brunt of many unfavorable comments!

This book gives a fascinating look into Dr. Haywood's patients – from those residing on Governor Manly's plantation, to his extended family (Miss E. G. Haywood, Edward G. Haywood, etc.), to other patients including someone at Lovejoy's Academy [checkout this NCpedia page on Lovejoy Academy, established in 1842, http://ncpedia.org/lovejoy-academy].

Here is an image of page 5 from this book to give you a sense of this particular doctor's hand-writing. Actually, his hand-writing is pretty legible and better than that of some court clerks!

NEW LIGHT TOWNSHIP (STONEY HILL PRECINCT) – 1904

[Ed. Note: As you have seen from all the districts done so far, the "Descendant" column was to have the name of the person by whom the voting rights descend. That is either the father (who was eligible to vote in 1867) or the person themselves (eligible to vote in 1867). Obviously this person didn't get that memo and just listed where the person "came from." Now, this still has value as you can see that some of the individuals listed did NOT list Wake County as where they were from. So, if these were your ancestors and you have had trouble locating them, this new information might be helpful.]

Relief Payments for Families of Confederate Soldiers – 1861-1865

Transcribed by Hope Blackford

[Source: NCSA C.R.099.928.13]

"All civilians, though southerners more than northerners, suffered from rampant inflation. Poor families, those on fixed incomes, and women subsisting on soldiers' wages often found it impossible to find, much less to pay, for food on a private's pay of $11 a month when a barrel of flour cost $100 in the Confederacy. In April 1863 several hundred women in Richmond marched on the governor's mansion shouting "Bread! Bread! Our children are starving while the rich roll in wealth."

"In another extension of government authority, state governments, especially in Georgia, Louisiana, and North Carolina, tried to alleviate the deprivation of soldiers' families by instituting welfare programs with direct relief given to civilians. So too did the Confederate government in Richmond, although such payments failed to stop the deterioration of economic circumstances and morale. In the resulting personal interactions between civilians and the military, gloomy letters from wives and mothers affected the motivation of soldiers who, after all, were fighting for their homes and families. Morale fluctuated with the success of the armies. The ethic of patriotism in 1861 and the later ideal of sacrifice that inflamed Confederate women shriveled, and by 1865 rampant desertion from the army was one of the results…

Register of Practicing Physicians, Surgeons, Embalmers, and Midwives in the City of Raleigh, NC

Transcribed by Helen Cleereman, Cyndi Deal, and Hope Blackford

[Source: M.509.40001, NC Archives, Raleigh]

With the next edition of Wake Treasures, we will be starting a series on Birth records (commencing 1890 for the city of Raleigh).

As we were getting started, it was realized that the first few pages were not the birth index but actually a Register of Practicing Physicians, Surgeons, Embalmers, and Midwives in the City of Raleigh, North Carolina. Interestingly, physician E. Burke Haywood (mentioned elsewhere in this edition of the journal), is mentioned and noted as "dead." This would suggest that the original list, created 1 January 1890 included qualifying individuals at the time and then through time, these entries were noted with dead, moved, colored, gone, etc. as circumstances changed.

Though part of this directory was reproduced in Wake Treasures previously (see Volume 14 #2), for completeness as we delve into the associated birth records, we are re-creating this list in its entirety.

It would be interesting to see how this list compares to the Raleigh directories covering the same time period. Internet Archives has a Directory of the city of Raleigh for 1896-1897 available online, https://archive.org/details/directoryofcityo00sepa. It does include a list of Physicians towards the end (page 354), though I only found 1 embalmer list and no corresponding category for midwives.

An observation – the majority of listed midwives were "C" (presumably for "Colored"). This suggests that either at this point most "White" patients were having their babies delivered by a physician or that "White" midwives are underreported in the Register. If a reader would care to research late 19th century midwifery in North Carolina, it would be interesting to learn more.

If only we could find, as we have for E. Burke Haywood, private collections for all of the named individuals, especially pre-1890 – what a bonanza that would provide in terms of unofficial birth and death records!
