Remembering Atlas Vadar Allen

Carla Stancil

Carla Stancil is the president of the Wake County Genealogical Society and has Wake County ancestors. Her research and family stories have led to this interesting article, a part of a series of articles about her family. Look for the next installment in the upcoming issue of Wake Treasures.

Born 27 June 1904, my maternal grandfather, Atlas Vadar Allen (Atlas) lived a relatively short but very eventful life. He was the first son of Eugene Narron Allen (Bud) and wife Elizabeth Ray (Sissy). They lived in the extreme northern Wake County township of New Light.

The family was "dirt poor" in a very literal sense that they lived in a small cabin with no floors. It was a hard way of life as tenant farmers in the clay soil. Atlas learned the "family business" of distilling and selling moonshine at a very early age and would spend more than a little time in area jails and prison farms. He was a tall lanky fellow with a kind demeanor about him, but he could turn hard when the situation called for it. There are many family stories about his escapades!

Atlas first turns up in the US Census for Wake County in 1910[1] when he was reported as 4 years old (in reality, he was 6). At age 14, he appears in the 1920[2] US census for Wake County. He registered for the World War II draft but did not serve[3]. He would have been about 35 years old; it is possible he did not serve due to his age and the fact that he was a felon having already served prison time for participating in the "family business".

Atlas and his family were quite active in Creedmoor, NC, social activities and appear a number of times in the local paper, the Creedmoor Times-News, in the social pages. On 8 May 1918, the Creedmoor Times-News reported he was ill with "bilibous fever", later thought to be the Spanish flu during the pandemic of 1918.[4]

Prison could be a family affair as well, as Atlas served 6 months in the Wake County jail on the road crew in 1927, along side his father, Bud Allen, for illicit distilling and again in 1934 when he was caught with 23 cases of whiskey.[5] By this time, Atlas had married my grandmother, Ethel Davis Allen on 14 October 1926.[6] Ethel has her own colorful stories, but for now we will focus on Atlas.

Atlas is the perfect example of someone who was truly rehabilitated by his time in prison. It was at Caledonia Farms[7] prison camp in Halifax County, NC, that he learned to work on diesel engines and participated in a work release program with Carolina Tractor in Raleigh, NC. He used this skill to serve his country during the Second World War by working on helicopters at nearby Fort Bragg, NC.

I recall stories from my mother, Ann Gladys Allen Stancil, about how Atlas taught her to drive by the time she was 10 years old so she could help deliver the illicit whiskey he distilled. The family had a large sedan which Atlas would use to haul his moonshine to customers in rural Wake and Granville counties. He would nap in the backseat and recover from partaking of his product while mom drove. She had to sit on a Cola-Cola crate to reach the gas pedal and see over the steering wheel.

Atlas and wife Ethel were one of the first Allen family members to own real estate when they purchased a small clapboard house in south Raleigh on Summit Avenue for $1150.00 in July of 1938.[8] Here, they raised their three daughters, Ann Gladys, Grace Elizabeth, and Mary Joyce. Atlas continued to work for Carolina Tractor until 1960 and Ethel worked for the nearby Caraleigh Mills. They were very active in Caraleigh Baptist church, just a block from where they lived. If she were alive, it would be important to my mother for me to tell you that Atlas was first saved at Poole Road Baptist Church in Raleigh, NC, in the mid-1920s when he married Ethel. The family members were devout southern Baptists; their lives revolved around their church and family.

I remember Atlas vividly as a kind sweet man who loved to give me rides on his broad shoulders and take me to Miss Carter's store in the Caraleigh neighborhood of Raleigh, NC, for candy. Atlas enjoyed eating and often said he loved my grandmother's porkchops and gravy biscuits almost as much as he loved her. He was passionate about fishing on the North Carolina coast and he loved his Chihuahua, Tiny. When Tiny had puppies in the early 1960s, he gave one to each of his 5 grandchildren. We named my puppy Peanuts who became a defacto member of the family and lived well into the early 1980s.
Atlas passed on 21 October 1964 at Wake Memorial Hospital (now WakeMed) in Raleigh, NC of kidney and heart failure.[9] He was buried at Good Hope Baptist Church cemetery in Youngsville, NC, next to my grandmother[10]. My parents, Carl Donald and Ann Gladys Allen Stancil, are buried next to Atlas and Ethel. I visit them all as often as I can and remember how loved they all made me feel.

Stancil Letters, 1944 – 1945

Curated by Carla Stancil, Transcribed by Carla Stancil and Kate Gryson

Editor's Note: I am pleased to announce that Carla Stancil, President of Wake County Genealogical Society, has allowed us to publish a series of letters that her father, Carl D. Stancil wrote while he was in the Marines, written from 1944 – 1952. These letters were written from a variety of stations and illustrate the life of a marine. There are approximately 150 letters which will be published in chronological order as a series.

The first of these letters date back to 1944 and 1945. These letters are from Eric Stancil, written to his brother Carl Stancil, and are included below. Carla Stancil has written an article about her uncle Eric, which accompanies the letters.

Hello Carl,
I am getting fine and hope you are to. I play ball today. I had all day off.

4 July 1945

Dear Brother Carl;

Well how's the baby in the family feeling today? Fine I hope. I received your most welcome letter of June 18th. Sure was glad to hear from you.

Mama tells me you are helping her around the house. Well keep it up. young fellow you're doing a good job. Be sure you don't do any hard work.

How's your job coming along on the ice truck. Do you like it?

Say! tell me did you and Edith pass your grades in school? If you did I guess I'll have to send you something.

I am in port now. But will be leaving soon. I hope it will be for home.

Local Man Serves with a Heart:
Correspondence of Carl Donald Stancil (1930 – 1997)

Carl Donald Stancil, a native of Wake County, NC, was not only a war hero and dedicated US Marine, but he was also my very loving and gentle father. He served with the US Marines for over 20 years, most of that time stationed at Camp Lejeune, NC, and thankfully near his family in Raleigh, NC.

As the youngest child of Jesse Bernard Stancil and wife Ada Lou Johnson Stancil[11], dad was in good company when it came to serving his country. He was proud of his Patriot ancestors who served in the American Revolution[12], as well as two great grandfathers who served in the US Civil War. His father served in World War I as part of the US Army of Occupation[13]. His oldest brother, Jesse Roland Stancil, served with the 157th Infantry Regiment, US Army and was killed in action 21 October 1944 in La Havre, France[14]. His brothers, Eric Ray Stancil[15] and Cecil Braxton Stancil,[16] also served during World War II in the Pacific theatre. The Stancil family had a strong sense of civic pride and duty to country. Dad firmly believed in serving his country and often recited "God, Country, Family". He loved us in that order.

My father was a prolific letter writer. During his time of military service, he wrote hundreds of letters to his family back in Raleigh, whether he was in boot camp at Parris Island, SC, onboard a ship at sea, awaiting orders at Camp Pendleton, CA, or serving in a foreign land during war and peace time. He even wrote long handwritten letters to me while I was away at college. I now regret that I did not save his letters or return him the same courtesy of a thoughtful handwritten note.

To stay in touch with his tight-knit family, he wrote to his siblings Macon (who did not serve due to health issues), Eric, Cecil, sister Edith Cavell (so named for a British World War I nurse)[17], and his parents almost daily…for years. Especially his mother, Ada. A great majority of his letters were to his beloved mother, and he never neglected to let her know she was greatly loved and missed. The last letter known to exist was to my mother, Gladys Allen Stancil – a wonderful and slightly steamy love letter to the woman he had married just weeks earlier.

I am thankful to have 153 of these handwritten letters in my possession. The originals have been donated to the North Carolina Archives and can be seen as part of the Cold War Papers, CLDW 87 in the Military Collection[18]. They are a beautiful window into the world of a lonely but always brave serviceman who treasured his family and used his correspondence to remain in their lives despite the distance between them.

Wake Treasures will be running a series of articles based on these letters. Much of the information contained in the letters is of a personal nature, such as asking about the family dogs Butch and Duffy, how the Raleigh "Caps" were doing at Deveraux Fields near his family home on West Street, or how his beloved Aunt Belle and Aunt Mat were doing. He also spoke of his duty, responsibilities, troop movements, and the food served in the military mess hall that particularly made him miss his mother.

In his later years, dad came to enjoy the hobby of genealogy. I was fortunate enough to inherit his research and carry on with it in the years since his death in February of 1997[19]. We hope you enjoy this glimpse into the life of an enlisted serviceman and the family he left behind at 808 West Street in Raleigh, NC.

In the first of the series of the Stancil Letters, we provide the letter and postcard written to dad by his brother Eric. The postcard was postmarked 22 May 1944 and showed a picture of Seabees Demolition Practice at Camp Perry, Virginia, where Eric was in basic training with the US Army[20].

Eric Ray Stancil

1926 - 1998

Eric Ray Stancil was born 14 February 1926 in Smithfield, Johnston County, North Carolina.[21] Eric was the third son of six children for Jesse Stancil and his wife Lou Ada Johnson.[22],[23] The family moved from Smithfield, NC, where they farmed to the more urban area of Raleigh, NC, about 1930[24] for better economic and educational opportunities. Eric had five siblings: Jesse Roland, Macon McNair, Cecil Braxton, Edith Cavelle, and Carl Donald (my father) . Theirs was a very tight knit working-class family who held to their faith and believed in serving their country. Four of the Stancil sons served in the military, as did their father, Jesse. Their sister Edith was named for British nurse Edith Cavelle, who served in World War 1.

Once the family moved from Johnston County to Raleigh, NC, they lived just north of downtown in the Smokey Hollow neighborhood. The area was so named due to the coal burning trains that once emitted a deep black smoke that would settle in the low-lying area.[25] The Southern Railway and Seaboard lines converged in this area, in fact, the family lived in a series of rented homes just beneath the railroad trestle at 114 and 808 West Street in Raleigh, NC.[26] One of Eric's favorite pastimes in his youth was to visit Deveraux Meadow baseball park, built in the 1930s. The baseball stadium was home to the Raleigh Capitals, a farm team for the Boston Red Sox. [27] Eric and his family were avid followers of the "Raleigh Caps".

Smokey Hollow is just north of downtown Raleigh. Eric was able to walk to his various jobs at Peace Street Pharmacy, the Raleigh Times newspaper, Cooper's BBQ stand, the original 42nd Street Oyster Bar and Pine State Creamery.

In May of 1944, Eric entered the US Navy and was assigned to Camp Perry, Virginia, for training and then stationed aboard the USS Shamrock Bay[28]. At the time of his enlistment, he as employed with Pine State Creamery[29] on Glenwood Avenue in Raleigh as a clerk. While serving during World War II, Eric participated in the invasion and occupation of Luzon in the Philippines between 31 December 1944 and 27 Jan 1945. He also participated in the invasion and occupation of Iwo Jima between 16 Feb and 5 March 1945. Next, he was stationed in Okinawa, Japan, between March and June of 1945. During his time of military service, Eric was awarded the American Area Campaign Medal, European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal, Philippine Liberation Ribbon, a Bronze Star and the World War II Victory Medal. In May 1946, he was honorably discharged and returned to his family living on north West Street in Raleigh, NC.[30]

To partially illustrate his love of baseball, Eric wrote a postcard to his youngest brother Carl in May of 1944 mentioning that he got to play ball that day while in Navy basic training at Camp Perry, VA. (see picture)

In another missive from Eric to his brother Carl while serving aboard the USS Shamrock Bay in July of 1945, he is clearly homesick, asking about his younger sibling's school grades, their mother, the family dogs, and Carl's after school job on an ice truck in Raleigh. (see picture) Their older brother, Jesse Roland, had been killed 9 months earlier in the war in France. Eric asks Carl to pray for him at night before bed.
Eric married his first wife, Sudie Mae Harmon shortly after returning to Raleigh. They had two children together, Carolyn and Gwendolyn. Eric and Sudie divorced 2 June 1958, in Wake County, NC.[31]

When he was 33, Eric married Nannie Mae Lewis Wills 27 February 1959 in Raleigh, NC.[32] The marriage was witnessed by my parents, Carl and Gladys Stancil.[33] Nannie Mae (daughter of Jesse Edward Lewis and wife Lillian Mae Jones), had a son from a previous marriage, Leroy Wills, who Eric helped raise.

After his time in the Navy, Eric worked as an oil delivery man and worked on home furnaces for Norwood Oil Company in Raleigh. Eric and his wife Nannie lived in the Caraleigh neighborhood of Raleigh most of their marriage. Nannie Mae passed away in October 1990 and Eric died eight years later in 1998. His step-son Leroy passed the following year in 1999. Eric and Nannie are buried side by side at Montlawn Cemetery, Raleigh, NC. [34]
